VEREENING, South Africa (AP)—M. N. Smith volunteered to be the "casualty" in a safety demonstration. He was being lowered in a stretcher from the top of a building when the rope broke and he fell 60 feet to his death.

EGGSHELL DOME AUDITORIUM IN HUGE CITY CENTRE PLAN

$4,245,000 Project Includes City Hall

A $4,245,000 civic centre plan setting out facts and figures in detail for a "half-eggshell" auditorium and city hall on Cathedral Hill has been delivered to Mayor Scurrah, it was learned last night.

The study was requested last fall by the mayor when his revival of the auditorium plan awakened wide interest in Greater Victoria.

The mayor indicated at the time a definite proposal for an auditorium would be made in 1959, but added, "before we go further we must get something more certain on the costs."

It is understood the report recommends a 199-foot diameter aluminum-domed auditorium to look something like half an eggshell, capable of seating 3,000 and costing some $1,750,000.

A smaller, similar meeting hall with a 99-foot diameter dome and a seating capacity of 600 is also recommended at a cost of $220,000.

A multi-storied civic office building is believed recommended for construction adjacent to the auditorium at a cost of $1,800,000. For the present, office space would be rented since city hall wouldn't require all the space immediately.

Estimated cost of land acquisition and a parking area is expected to run to $400,000 and $75,000, respectively.

Cathedral Hill Best Site

The Cathedral Hill site, bounded by Douglas, Blanshard, Burdett and Broughton Streets, has long been recommended by planning experts as most suitable for a civic centre.

The same site has been chosen for construction of the new courthouse by the provincial government.

Principles of the "eggshell" type of construction have been known for some time, but it is only in recent years that such structures have been built. Existing buildings are usually described as attractive inside and out.

The civic building, it is understood, would have office space for departments, dealing day-to-day with the public, on the ground level. A council chamber would be located on the top floor.

Extra office space could be included for the eventuality of the school board being housed in the building and also to cover the possibility of amalgamation of Greater Victoria municipalities with additional offices being needed.

The plan was prepared by assistant city engineer Rodrick Clark, the architect who designed the new city firehall recently opened on Yates Street.

Concrete Plans, Costs

Mayor Scurrah asked Mr. Clark to make the study to have concrete plans and costs with which to win interest of the provincial government and Victoria municipalities.

Last fall the mayor proposed a small uniform tax levy (between $2 and $4 a year) to finance the auditorium without noticeable financial burden on taxpayers and without solicitation of public subscriptions.

The plan was later laid before the intermunicipal committee but representatives of other councils apparently wanted definite facts and figures before committing themselves. City representatives took the stand that all municipalities should share construction costs because an auditorium would be used by all Greater Victoria citizens.

Premier Bennett earlier this year said his government would put up one-third of the cost of the auditorium if the federal government would do the same and the community raised the remaining one-third.

Mayor Scurrah returned from Ottawa this week with the news that the federal government would not contribute.

Premier Bennett said the mayor should go back to Ottawa, ask again and refuse to take "no" for an answer.

Woman Pulled Free

Trapped Man Dies in Crash

A Victoria truck driver died trapped in the twisted wreckage of his car wrapped around a tree as police and civilians fought to free him from the vehicle at midnight last night.

Dead is Wallace L. McFadyen, 25, of 1010 Queens.

He was pronounced dead while still in the car at 12:10 a.m., half an hour after the car left West Saanich Road at the Durranne intersection and slammed into a tree 27 feet off the road.

A 19-year-old passenger, Faye Robinson, bleeding and hysterical, was trapped in the front passenger seat as rescuers struggled to get her free.

LONG TASK

It took police and other rescuers more than half an hour's labor with jacks, pipes and crowbars to get the dead man and his injured passenger out of the twisted car.

The four-door sedan was wrapped tightly around the 18-inch thick oak tree on the driver's side and was crushed so badly there "just wasn't any driver's seat left," rescuers said.

Police were called to the scene by nearby residents who heard the thundering crash and rushed out to investigate. They said the driver was still alive when they reached the scene.

Victoria police doctor E. L. McNiven was called to the scene by Saanich police, but the accident victim died while the doctor was on the way.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

The woman was rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital in Saanich police ambulance after she was pulled from the shambles of the car. Hospital spokesmen said she was in fairly good condition with chest injuries, bruises and shock.

The car was twisted like a "trampled toy," witnesses said.

Police said it was "a miracle" the woman got out alive. They said she was conscious but hysterical throughout the long rescue operation.

Mostly Informal

Royal Visit Outlined For City

Tentative plans for Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip to spend a largely informal 48 hours in and around Victoria on July 16, 17 and 18 were announced yesterday.

During this time the Royal couple will receive an official welcome to B.C. on the steps of the legislative buildings, spend two nights in the new Government House, visit City Hall and be driven over the Malahat.

CHANGES POSSIBLE
Details were released by eight planners conducting a dry run over the long tour. They emphasized all planning could be changed before details are finally set.

Receiving lines, speeches and activities inside buildings closed to the general view are being discouraged on the B.C. tour.

VANCOUVER STOP
The Queen and Prince Philip will spend 12 hours in Vancouver on July 15, before boarding an RCN destroyer for Victoria.

Official welcome on behalf of the government of the province will be held on the steps of the legislative buildings where as many people as can jam the spacious lawns and driveway will be able to see the Royal couple.

FIRST GUESTS
They will be the first official guests in the newly-completed Government House on July 16 and 17.

Tour officials said the Royal couple "would almost certainly be taken over the Malahat drive."

There will be numerous eight-mile-an-hour slowdown areas along the Royal routes in the city.

TWO CARS READY
The Royal couple will ride in a convertible with the top down if the weather is good, but in case of bad weather the car will be a closed sedan.

Local police officials will work out timing of the procession after the routes have been fixed and approved by Buckingham Palace.

OFF TO YUKON
The Queen and Prince Philip will leave from Patricia Bay airport on the morning of July 18 for Whitehorse in the Yukon, with a stopover at Terrace.

Tour officials said final plans for Vancouver Island section of the tour should be approved and made public by May 15.

Caught Near Platform

Castro 'Bomber' Foiled

Dawn Breaks, Shocks Block

NORRIS RISE, England (UPI)—When the sun rises on Norris Rise, babies begin to cry; dogs growl, the washing on the line hums and the TV goes on the blink.

Housewives report the situation is "shocking."

The shocking conditions exist around a block of public housing located underneath high-tension power lines.

When the sun shines, the lines give off static electricity that builds up as the sunshine grows warmer.

"Living with a pylon is no fun at all," said Mrs. Evelyn Tape, who shares her back yard with a 100-foot-high steel tower.

"My four-year-old daughter Georgina is violently sick, my husband gets headaches and the washing gives me tiny shocks," she said.

FIDEL CASTRO

Huge Crowd Unaware Of Blast Try

NEW YORK (UPI)—Police arrested an unemployed U.S. Air Force veteran just as he was about to touch off a homemade bomb behind the platform on which Fidel Castro was speaking to a crowd of 30,000 in Central Park last night.

The veteran, identified as John Gregory Feller, 23, who has worked as a riveter, told police he was going to set off the deadly bomb "just for kicks."

He denied that he intended to harm anyone, but bomb squad experts termed the bomb a lethal instrument and said it could cause extensive damage up to 300 feet—easily reaching the spot where the Cuban revolutionist was speaking.

CASTRO UNAWARE

Neither the bearded Castro nor his wildly cheering audience was aware of the incident at the time, but at police insistence Castro cancelled a scheduled appearance later last night at a beauty contest sponsored by a Spanish-language newspaper.

Feller was sighted acting in a suspicious manner about 200 feet behind the band shell which Castro was using as a speaking platform.

SEARCHED HOME

Police searching Feller's furnished room said they found another bomb and materials for still other infernal machines. Observers speculated that they may have nipped in the bud another "mad bomber," such as the one which plagued police and public places for years before he was apprehended.

Castro is scheduled to arrive in Montreal 11 a.m. EST Sunday for a revolutionist visit.

Radio 'Death Ray' Kills 10 Monkeys

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government scientists reported Friday that at least 10 monkeys have been killed in recent experiments by a crude "death ray" derived from certain ultra-high frequency radio waves.

But Dr. Pearce Bailey, who made the report, indicated a belief that it would be unlikely that such a thing could happen to a person listening to a radio or working a radar set.

However, he also said that while "we feel certain that radio and radar are not dangerous . . . we have had mysterious airplane accidents."

Bailey said the most important scientific finding so far from the experiment is this:

Of 10 out of 21 monkeys given sufficient exposure to kill them, pathological examination of their brains after death showed "very few abnormalities." And the 11 others all had a "quite complete recovery."

This shows that science now has "an instrument that can change the physiology of the brain without doing permanent damage."

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Los Angeles firm is developing an out-of-this-world sound. It could kill you, said William Thomas, president of James B. Lansing Sound Inc.

He explained: "The sound is so loud that you can't hear it because you would be dead before you heard it. It's perfectly capable of destroying

Boy Rescued In Car Fire

VANCOUVER (CP)—A three-year-old boy, Peter Butch, was rescued from a burning car outside Vancouver City Hall Friday by passerby Joseph Gray, who said it was just a "stroke of luck" he found the boy.

The boy was left inside the car when his father went into city hall on business. An unexplained fire broke out while Mr. Butch was inside.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

Ice-cold beer from the liquor store? This is the dream conjured up by a reader, who believes it is little short of cruelty to offer an American tourist lukewarm beer on a hot day.

He thinks each liquor store should have a cooling room in which chilled beer is kept.

Englishmen, generally, like tepid beer. Americans like iced beer. And Canadians waver between the two.

But if we are to suit the tastes of Americans, whom we invite here by the thousands, we should try to have their kind of goods available.

Incidentally, the tourist promoters have missed a good bet for years. They have done good work in luring Americans here. But they have neglected one of their best markets—the hundreds of thousands of people on the Lower Mainland, only a few miles away.

The average Vancouverite derives his notion of Victoria from the standard cartoons, whose humor all runs to the same formula, containing the same tired clichés about old gentlemen with waterfall mustaches, sipping tea, eating crumpets, riding bicycles and tripping over their scarves.

Geordies, Tinkers, Too

I wonder why so many people parody the appearance of what they imagine to be the English ruling class, stranded in a strange environment? Why don't they also poke fun at the little Londoners who ran confectionery shops, Geordies who worked in garages, Yorkshire textile hands?

Why don't they ridicule Irish tinkers, Welsh goat-herds or Cockney barrow boys? Their motives would make an interesting study. How many of the fun-makers, I wonder, came from the "ruling class" themselves, and how many wished they had?

Those class distinctions are vanishing now, but they have left a legacy of malice for another generation.

Anyway, the Vancouverite's ideas of Victoria are drawn largely from what he hears from professional and amateur parodists. He sees a Victoria that never existed, and never will.

Victoria's tourist promoters have not only assented to these caricatures, but have helped to spread them. This distorted picture of the town may help bring in American tourists. I'm sure it does.

Draw a New Image

But I believe it actually repels visitors from the Lower Mainland, who think of Victoria as a limp, quaint place haunted by gulls and gentlewomen—a place where no red-blooded Canadian could have fun.

Victoria tourist people should have dispelled this gloomy picture. They should have set up another image of Victoria for Vancouver consumption: a disipated, pleasure-loving, bibulous town where painters, horse-players and beatniks, flourishing tankards, dance and throw flowers in the streets, go to sleep with their heads on flowerbeds, and wake up to set out on another mad round of pleasure at the race-track, the swimming pool and casino.

At the same time, the tourist people should set out to make these dreams come true, and attract the trade of those hundreds of thousands from the Mainland who have never visited Victoria.

Is it too late to soft-pedal "Victoria, City of Gardens," and play up "Victoria, City of Beer Gardens?"

Honor Performances

School Choirs Shine At Festival Concert

Third in the current series of music festival concerts at Central Junior Auditorium last night was also the honor performance for school choral classes. (See story page 5.)

Chairman was H. J. Rigby and the program was opened by Alex Turnbull, assistant superintendent of Victoria schools.

Two schools were represented twice. St. Ann's Academy, which scored a triple win with their choirs from Grades 4, 5 and 6, were present with Grades 4 and 5. The Jimmy Cricket Kindergarten presented their diminutive Grade 1 choir and their Grade 1 rhythm band.

Other winning choirs were Cordova Bay School Grade 2, Oaklands School Grade 3, Tolmie Grade 3, Tolmie School composite choir to Grade 6, Lansdowne Junior High boys' choir and Central Junior High girls' choir.

Also present was the S. J. Willis Junior High band, winner in its class Thursday evening with a very high mark of 181.

The Grade 5 choir of St. Ann's received the highest mark given in the school choral section of the festival, 175.

A small but appreciative audience was treated to a fine program, indeed.

Molesting Suspect Caught

Terror at End In Point Grey?

VANCOUVER (CP)—A 17-year-old youth was charged Friday with molesting a woman, and morality squad detectives said he is suspected of being the elusive prowler who has terrorized women in Vancouver's Point Grey district for more than a year.

The youth, originally arrested on a theft charge, was later charged with indecent assault on a female in a UBC dormitory in May last year.

The charge was laid after his fingerprints were compared with those of the attacker left on a light globe in the dormitory.

SAME METHOD

Police said the method of operation in that attack was the same as in a number of other cases in the district.

A 25-year-old woman, alone in the dormitory, was awakened by a man who stripped her of her pyjamas and fondled her. He turned a light globe off with his hand because he couldn't find the switch.

Many of the molester's victims were girls living in basement suites. Some were forced to undress at knife-point.

TERROR TRAIL

The molester started his trail of terror in Point Grey Dec. 2, 1957. Since then at least 16 women have been menaced in their homes, the last two on New Year's Day and Feb. 23 this year.

State Spends To Speed Strike Trials

HENDERSON, N.C. (UPI)—The state of North Carolina put up $10,000 yesterday to aid prosecution of terrorists responsible for continuing textile strike violence.

More than 200 cases crowd the dockets, including 39 charges for assault with a deadly weapon and 41 for malicious damage.

Apparent settlement of a five-month dispute between Harriet Henderson Cotton Mills and the Textile Workers Union of America collapsed.

The union, representing 1,200 employees, went out on strike in November demanding an arbitration clause in a new contract. The company resumed partial operations in February with about 700 new employees and former strikers. The union claims the company was seeking to break the union, and that the strike was, in effect, a fight for textile unionism all over the South.

City Panel Seeks Solution

Delinquency Up

Juvenile delinquency in Greater Victoria is increasing by mischievous leaps and bounds.

And there's no easy solution to the problem, though there are some measures that could help ease the situation, speakers at a meeting of the Association of Social Workers of B.C. South Vancouver Island branch, agreed Thursday.

The discussion panel agreed that a special juvenile judge with jurisdiction over family troubles in general would have an effect in improving the situation in Greater Victoria.

Figures quoted by the panel showed a 342 per cent increase in delinquency in Oak Bay in the past 10 years. Increase from 20 cases in 1949 to 242 in 1958 in Saanich, jump from 125 to 500 cases during the same period in Victoria.

Blamed, in part, by panelists for conditions were such factors as:

Breakdown of family units partly because of working mothers... effects of two world wars... false standards of living... lack of control by parents... the junior high school system because it is "a producer of trouble-makers and too large and unwieldy to keep pace with the individual child's needs."

Sgt. Victor Pratley, Oak Bay juvenile officer, said the increase in delinquency was accelerating so quickly the figures "seem ridiculous."

"If a child finds school work difficult he turns to mischief," said Saanich juvenile officer Harry Adams. "Every night is Halloween. The wilful damage is just for something to do."

"Children are what parents make them," Victoria juvenile officer Lyle Somers contended. "Some parents think you have children and that's that—they will grow up all by themselves. Well, they don't."

Calgary Set to Sell Land For Fraction of Value

CALGARY (CP)—Five acres of land which Calgary proposes to sell for $5,000 an acre for a shopping centre site has been valued by independent appraisers as worth up to $14,000 an acre, the Turcotte inquiry into Calgary's civic government was told Friday.

Sale of the land to Warner Holdings Ltd. has been held up by a court injunction awarded to the Farmers and Merchants Trust Company which contended the price was too low and that the land was being sold without tenders being called.

W. A. McGillivray, public counsel, submitted reports from appraisers that the land was worth far in excess of the total $25,000 price Warner Holdings would pay.

Russell Riley, land superintendent, testified that although the city received a later offer of $10,000 an acre, he thought the city had a moral obligation to accept the lower offer from Warner Holdings.

Mr. Riley also testified that he jumped at the offer from Warner Holdings because it looked like an opportunity to get the land on the tax rolls. For years the land had been used only as a duck slough.

The inquiry later adjourned for a week when it will then wind up its judicial investigation.

Judge Turcotte said the inquiry would sit until midnight next Friday if necessary to get

Beating a Dead Horse

HOW many times around does the issue of employing "firemen" on freight and yard diesel engines have to go before it will be considered as settled? In Canada the issue was aired before and dealt with by a conciliation board hearing argument in the dispute between the CPR and the firemen's union in 1956. The conciliation board's finding against the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen in due course went before the Kellock commission set up specially by the Dominion with public hearings extending throughout 1957. The royal commission, composed of three wholly independent judges, found against the firemen; and accepted the CPR's contention that under today's conditions diesel yard and freight firemen were "feather-bedding."

The argument up to that point had rested on the CPR's standstill against the claims of the firemen's union; that process running into two strikes, a royal commission and a brief interlude of federal intervention. Previously the CNR had given in to the claims of the union in concurrence with 140 railways south of the border, in the United States. After the Kellock report, the CNR made use of this finding by adopting much the same policy as the CPR. This implied that yard and freight diesels would not carry "firemen," that no man so engaged would be dismissed but other work found for him, and that further engagements would not be made for that purpose. Is it against this stand that the present threat of a strike is being revived?

By rehashing now an issue that was completely studied and finally decided by an independent tribunal in 1957, Canadian labor is being poorly advised and badly led. The public has already drawn the one logical inference, that American union leaders are using Canadian units of the Brotherhood to run interference for them while they approach the settlement of this year's wage contracts south of the border. That the Canadian section of the Brotherhood will strike on May 1 is open to considerable doubt. What could be advanced now that the Kellock commission did not settle? If labor politics with an American flavor is behind the current protest, as is openly suggested, such a trend would run counter to public opinion in Canada so strongly that a strike could only recoil. Since the Kellock commission reported this issue has been a dead horse. Canadian labor will damage itself and forfeit public goodwill if it allows itself to be used in this transparent fashion.

Up in Smoke

THE centennial year is over but this fall another scheduled attraction is a series of bonfires on August 2 to celebrate the extinction of the provincial direct debt. One doubts that as Premier Bennett says "all eyes of the free world will be on British Columbia" when the fires are lit, if only because most of the free world have other things to look at and much of it will never hear of let alone see these "mortgage" flames.

No doubt it is an auspicious occasion, although whether it warrants such extroverted display of triumph may be a matter of opinion. It should be the ordinary business of any good government to be prudent housekeepers without expecting special plaudits for doing what it is elected to do. Nevertheless the Sacred regime at James Bay has some right to be pleased at wiping out in seven years some $190,000,000 of debt. This is an achievement. The real credit goes, of course, as happily Mr. Bennett admitted, to the people of B.C. who pay the taxes.

The pleasure is not wholly unalloyed, however. While cleaning the slate of direct debt the government has increased the indirect debt until its now stands around the half-billion-dollar figure. There is nothing intrinsically wrong with this, although it would be more helpful if detailed statements of the crown agencies comprising the indirect liability were made public, but it does mean that despite the bonfires a guaranteed obligation will still exist.

A government can choose the lines of its financial policies and it need not apologize when it does something to save millions in interest and increase its borrowing credit thereby. Where it may be faulted is if it tries to gloss over a contingent liability as though it were not there. In the present instance it is very much there even if the impact is soft and theoretically problematical.

The bonfires will set free some $25,000,000 yearly no longer required to sustain the "mortgage" going up in smoke. What will be done with this handsome bonus? One would like to hope the municipalities could share in it, for they are the poor relations of governance whose ratepayers at the moment are having to fork out heavily for measures introduced by the "mortgage" burners.

Summertime Muddles

CLOCKS all over British Columbia will be advanced one hour this weekend—officially in the early hours of Sunday morning, though for convenience most people will make the change before retiring tonight. Putting the clocks forward an hour in late April and back again in September has become a routine procedure requiring no great mental effort. All people need to be reminded of is the date; and as ample reminders always are given, failure to make the alteration no longer is accepted as a valid excuse for lateness for work on Monday morning.

When it comes to travelling long distances, however, the advent of daylight-saving time continues to cause a great deal of mind searching and to be fraught with vexation and confusion, sometimes with awkward results. This is because of the fact that while some transportation services adjust their schedules to the clock the public goes by, others continue to announce hours of departure and arrival according to standard time.

The reason for this has never been satisfactorily explained. All airlines serving British Columbia, including the transcontinental routes, amend their schedules to suit the change in official time, but the coast-to-coast railways adhere to standard time, and so do the Canadian Pacific ferries. This makes timetables very perplexing for travellers and also for relatives or friends planning to meet them on arrival, especially when trips are made by a combination of air and surface routes. Endless muddles result from this conflict of clocks.

Daylight-saving time in summer is so long established in most parts of Canada that surely it should be possible for the railways and ferries to conform. If the airlines can do it, why can't the railways?

Congress in Support

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

CHRISTIAN A. HERTER, the new American secretary of state, appears to have more support in the Senate than he does in the White House. Usually, in so sensitive a cabinet post, it is the other way around.

The Senate went to unusual lengths this week to demonstrate its unqualified confidence in Herter as successor to the ailing Mr. Dulles. It suspended its own rules to give him, in little more than four hours, a confirmation that ordinarily takes at least a week.

The unprecedented Senate action was designed primarily to strengthen Herter's hand when he meets in Paris next week with Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd and French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville to plot Allied strategy for East-West meetings in Geneva next month on the Berlin issue.

But it also is regarded as a rebuke to President Eisenhower for the off-hand and lukewarm manner in which he handled the Herter appointment after events made it clear that Dulles could not continue in office.

Apparently Eisenhower tried to make up for this coolness belatedly at Wednesday's formal swearing-in. He told Herter that he and Dulles "were as one" in deciding that Herter was the best man for the job, and pledged him full support.

The president's personal distress over Dulles' illness, and his reluctance to see his secretary resign, was generally acknowledged, but many congressmen were puzzled why Eisenhower took so long in nominating the man who long has been regarded as the logical successor to Dulles.

But now, with the Senate so solidly behind him, there can be no doubt abroad that Herter has powerful support in his new post. He unquestionably is in a better position to negotiate than he would have been had the Senate followed its normal procedure and taken seven days deliberation before approving him.

It's later than you think

Surely Not Again!

(From The Montreal Gazette)

THERE is an almost incredible weariness in the thought that the issue of firemen on freight and yard diesels is being brought before the country again, under the threat of a rail strike. The issue, to all intents and purposes, is dead. At this very late stage it can be kept alive only by the most artificial of respirators.

The issue now concerns the Canadian National Railways. But the same issue has already been settled with the Canadian Pacific Railway. And surely no issue in Canada has undergone a more thorough and decisive examination.

When it arose with regard to the Canadian Pacific Railway it was dealt with by a conciliation board in 1956, and then by a special royal commission (the Kellock Commission) in 1957. It involved two strikes on the CPR.

Both the conciliation board and the royal commission came to the unhesitating conclusion that firemen on the CPR's freight and yard diesels no longer serve any useful purpose. This view was in effect accepted by the union concerned, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

It is the same issue that now concerns the CNR. The CPR and the CNR are both Canadian railways, operating under the same conditions, using practically the same equipment and even operating in some areas over the same tracks. And the same union is involved—the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen.

Nevertheless, the whole question of the need for firemen on freight and yard diesels was considered again in the CNR's case by a new conciliation board. In its majority report it arrived at the same conclusion: namely, that firemen on such diesels serve no useful purpose.

It can scarcely be said that any hardship is involved. Firemen on steam locomotives or on diesels in passenger service are not affected. Nor will firemen at present employed with the CNR on freight and yard diesels lose their jobs. On the contrary, the employment and seniority of all such firemen, from February 3, 1958, will be protected. And, with the general decline of traffic, no new firemen have been hired since that date. This means that no firemen now employed would be discharged.

Not only will the employment of these firemen be continued: they will be working under better conditions than ever before. The CNR has accepted all the recommendations of the conciliation board. These include recommendations for increases in wages, for more vacation with pay, for payment for six statutory holidays, for increased health and welfare benefits, as well as a number of other benefits.

It is only by the acceptance of improved methods of operation that the railways, or any other industry, may hope to offset some of the rising costs, including the rising costs of wages. The urgency is seen in the annual report of the Canadian National Railways, tabled in the House of Commons this week. The CNR reports the biggest deficit since 1938.

Decline in traffic and rising costs could only partly be offset by improved efficiency in operation. In increasing this efficiency, the use of diesels is of great importance. But even this economy may itself be reduced if the CNR is to be obligated, year after year into the future, to employ firemen where their usefulness has vanished.

Reports from Ottawa

NEXT year Canadian airmen will start becoming Canadian missilemen at Hurlburt Field, the first Bomarc missile establishment, on the muggy Gulf coast near Pensacola, Florida.

My colleague, Peter Stursberg, has just returned from Hurlburt, having been the first Canadian journalist to visit this future training centre of the RCAF. This is his report:

American airmen already are making the transition at this sandy, palm-tree base—and it's quite a chance-over.

The first group of 160 officers and men of the USAF began going to "school" here last month. After a four-months' course they will become the 46th Air Defence Squadron (Missile), and will man the Bomarc installation at McGuire Air Force Base in New Jersey.

Most of them are former members of a fighter squadron. They found they had to unlearn much of what they knew of air fighting. They found that their values and their whole way of life must change. In their new role there is no division between aircrew and ground crew. Now all are ground crew.

No one flies a Bomarc, but most of these American airmen were unpleasantly surprised to learn that none of them would even press the button to fire their missiles. The button-pressing is done at SAGE, the semi-automatic ground environment or control centre with its electronic computers, which may be hundreds of miles away.

The former pilots will be responsible for the assembly of the supersonic half rocket, half pilotless jet plane when it arrives from the factory—as it probably will come to the Canadian Bomarc sites—packaged in several boxes. They will test its thousands of parts, fuel it and prepare it for firing.

They will carry out count downs on missile firings, with the squadron operations officer shouting "... minus three, minus two, minus one, fire!" But a man at SAGE will press the button on the piped cue of "Fire!" from the Bomarc base.

Instead of silver wings, these servicemen of the space age have a pin of oxidized metal in the shape of a missile on their breast pockets. In Canada these badges probably will be embroidered like the present RCAF wings.

An instructor at Hurlburt, a former pilot who wore his missileman insignia below his hard-won wings, made a sardonic joke about the new badge:

"It's the tombstone of the fly-boys," he said.

Our Canadian airmen will have to learn new technical terms in their transition into missilemen. And a new jargon. What they may end up being called hasn't been finally determined yet. Maybe "missileers."

The Bomarc is known as the "bird," and a fabulously expensive one it is too. A recent three-to-three shoot from Santa Rosa Island, a sand bar in the Gulf of Mexico which serves as a firing range, was estimated to be a $2,000,000 bang. Three missiles brought down three self-piloted jet target planes in this shoot.

The fact that missilemen have such down-to-earth jobs after the glamor of flying has the U.S. authorities worried. The USAF frankly admits the missilemen are practically non-combatants. Their Bomarc will never be fired except in anger, and even then by others.

The intention is to bring all American missilemen back to Hurlburt periodically for refresher courses, to keep their morale up. Whether the RCAF's morale will require regular sojourns in Florida hasn't been determined. But if it were left to a vote of our future missileers, there's no doubt what the decision would be.

This Urban Sprawl

By GREGORY CLARK

IN my boyhood (and in my pocket jack-knife I had then—so it can't be so long ago) you did not have to walk more than a mile from the end of the streetcar line until you were in the country.

Today in Toronto you have to drive 50 miles an hour for an hour and a half before you leave the city behind. And even then you don't really leave it.

Oh, sure, there are fields 10 miles out. But they look as if they have already been subdivided and are merely awaiting the bulldozers. Sure, there are barns. But they are tidy and tall and have fancy names painted on them, and look as though they were owned by limited companies. Cattle, sure. But prize cattle. Not country cattle.

As a matter of fact, the country doesn't look like the country any more. Just about the time you feel that you have left the city behind, you begin to come into the orbit of a town. Even the villages have a suburban look, and no vestige remains of that difference in feel, in tone, in tempo, that made a village a place to come to, with emotion, from the city.

What nonsense is this I write! Who will remember with me what the country was like?

Why, hardly anybody carries a jack-knife in his pocket any more.

What do you want with a jack-knife when you've got a ball point pen, eh?

Washington Angle

Portrait of Dulles

By DAVID LAWRENCE

CHRISTIAN Archibald Herter will be an effective secretary of state as long as he sticks to the moral principles in world affairs that have guided John Foster Dulles. The moment he succumbs to the insidious tactics of appeasement carried on by various advisers, some of them inside the government itself and some in the Senate foreign relations committee, the advice he can give President Eisenhower will become less and less valuable.

It is an open secret that the enemies of Mr. Dulles are among those happy over the selection of Christian Herter. They are mistaken in their assumptions, but they believe anybody is bound to be more "flexible" in their direction than was the outgoing secretary.

The story of the drive to oust Mr. Dulles is important for the American people to know. It has been carried on for the last three years by certain members of the press in Washington, New York and London and in other European capitals.

The first piece of fiction given wide currency in the press dispatches was that Mr. Dulles played the game alone—that nobody else in the Department of State ever knew what his policies were or were likely to be. This was a species of mischievous gossip which originated with disgruntled partisans—a few foreign service officers whose ideas were not accepted. They fed hostile propaganda to certain press representatives.

But the simple truth is that Secretary Dulles did hold a staff conference every day that he was at his office. Sometimes they lasted the better part of the morning. At least 15 individuals, including all the deputy secretaries and assistants and heads of divisions, attended. They were always asked to express their views. Often in their presence, the secretary would pick up the telephone and report to the president on the trend of the discussion. There was always a planning conference before the secretary left on a trip.

It is a sweeping misrepresentation to say that John Foster Dulles was a one-man operator and had no regard for "teamwork." This was so often repeated that it was accepted even by some disinterested writers. They were misled, too, by the fact that Mr. Dulles relied largely on his own knowledge in foreign affairs accumulated over a 40-year period, which none of his conferees possessed.

He is, of course, a subjective personality and has none of the extrovert in his manner. Hence, in the hearings on Capitol Hill, he was looked upon as a stern individual with a rigid viewpoint. His conferences with foreign diplomats tended to be formal and austere. But this so-called rigidity was to his credit. For he didn't bend with the wind or yield to the pressures of expediency that came from the peace-at-any-price side. He thought only of his country's future—not of personal aggrandizement or applause or popularity.

Mr. Dulles gave to the press more information on foreign policy than anyone who ever occupied the post of secretary of state. He held lengthy press conferences both in this country and when he was abroad. He answered all manner of questions. Indeed, he was sometimes accused of talking too much. Diplomats abroad occasionally resented his comments as cabled across the ocean in brief and fragmentary dispatches in the press. European governments then had to be told to get the full text to see that he didn't say what he had been reported to have said. His legal training caused him to be precise and to respect the precedents of international law.

Christian Herter, on the other hand, got his training in politics. He ran for Congress and was elected five times. He was twice elected governor of Massachusetts. He has, therefore, a skill and experience in dealing with the public and the press which will redound to his advantage.

How much perspicacity has the new secretary? Will he be able to see through the propaganda distortions and the crafty statements made to him during the course of diplomatic conversations? It must be remembered that Mr. Herter was recommended by Mr. Dulles for the post of under-secretary, with the knowledge that it would be training for the promotion if the secretary retired. The latter definitely planned to resign on reaching his 70th birthday, but President Eisenhower wouldn't let him go at the time. It was Herter who, it was tacitly understood all along, would be the next secretary of state.

The new secretary of state will find out who are his friends and who are his opponents the moment he shows himself aware not only of the Communist game but of the wiles of those in the West, inside and outside government, who unwittingly play the Communist game.

Letters to the Editor

Price Jugglers

Re the "egg war" in Tuesday's Colonist: It costs the producer nearly a dollar to feed a pullet before it starts to lay, so before there is profit he has to get this back. It's a criminal shame, with his incessant hours of labor, that his profits are thrown to the wolves, these heartless price jugglers.

There is a set price between the feed bill and small margin of profit. If this is not maintained the whole economy collapses; the retailers are working for nothing and the producer gives up, with disastrous repercussions, as scores have done in this last three years.

This has become a vicious rotteness and also is bad for the feed companies, their drivers—children, and is ruining what could be a healthy industry on Vancouver Island. It is up to the government or the city licence bureau to stop this, and protect the egg prices.

Cruel Divorce Laws

I would like to have all the people throughout British Columbia back a demand to have our one-minded divorce law revised.

In our divorce court one crude humiliating meaning describes the word "adultery." In the catechism book "Thou shalt not commit adultery..." adultery has many meanings, as follows: "We should fear and love God that we may lead a chaste and decent life in word and deed and love and honor his spouse." My minister described these meanings more fully. In our words, in our actions and hatred of our spouse, and even to some of our ways of dress, is an adultery sin.

In the dictionary, the word "adultery" means, violation of the marriage bed. This alone could mean different reasons for applying for divorce. Violation means to lack respect for.

If one spouse were to willfully leave marriage bed for a long period of time, with no intention of returning to it, this also would be an violation of the marriage bed, under one word, "adultery." Whether still living under the same roof or not, this should give room for divorce also.

More ministers and priests or heads of any Christian dominations should visit the divorce courts. They would be very humiliated with the present and only procedures taken there.

I believe all Christian dominations, welfare workers, lawyers, doctors and the public, should see that an amendment is made to our present divorce law. I would like to see lawyers make up a list of the most needed causes and what the divorce laws should cover.

It is up to all of us to help. Children today raised in these homes of hatred, are the up-coming generation of tomorrow. What a dim mental outlook they will have tomorrow.

If two spouses cannot find peace and serenity with each other, may they be granted separate ways.

(MRS.) DOROTHY BAILEY.

Impressive Army of Pianists Keeps Festival Busy All Day

By BERT BINNY

An impressive army of 83 young pianists was heard in music festival halls yesterday. The piano classes, adjudicated by friendly but thorough Miss Nellie Tholen of Lewis and Clarke College in Portland started at 9 a.m. and continued with scarcely any abatement until after 6 p.m.

There were 17 competitors in both the seven and under and the eight and under classes but there were 23 nine and under and 26 ten and under — quite a batch of pianists for one day.

"I wish," said Miss Tholen, "that these kids would make things easier for me!"

She actually referred to their unending capacity to surprise even an experienced adjudicator.

Girls outnumbered boys both in the seven and under and the eight and under classes. Nevertheless, in the first, boys, Lyle Shepherd (7) and John Sutherland (6), occupied the first two places. Little Miss Janice Carter (7) prevented a complete female rout by taking third place.

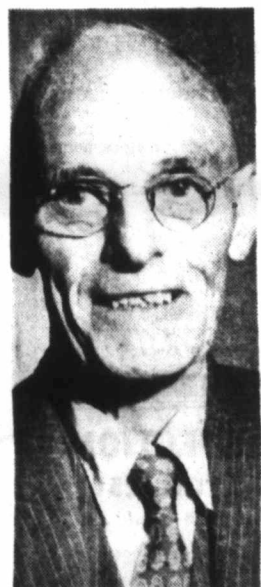

In the eight and under class, boys and girls were nearer equal in numbers. Darien Hunt (8) and Jimmie Matiko (8) were first and second, with Miss Robin Hampton (7) securing third place. Doubtless lending weight to the proposition that music runs in a family, Jacqueline Court, younger sister of the Barbara-Anne who did so excellently in the violin section on Thursday, won the nine and under class from 22 competitors.

"This class was excellent all through," said the adjudicator. "The two second-place competitors would have been easy winners if they hadn't had her (Jacqueline) to deal with. She is a real young artist growing up."

The runners-up in question were Brenda Fox and Carolyn Zapf. One point behind them were Marion Doan and Maryann MacLean.

After a marathon session with 26 competitors in the 10 and under class, including a number of tie-breaking repeat performances, the winner proved to be Charlotte Hick with 89, while Connie Pepper amassed 88.

In the instrumental classes Jim Ballard of Port Alberni received an excellent mark of 93 and very high commendation from adjudicator William Cole. Jim won the class for a brass solo, 18 years and under.

Influenza Sweeps Saskatoon

SASKATOON (UPI)—The influenza outbreak sweeping across the West has taken one life and is approaching epidemic proportions here with between 10 and 30 per cent of the population affected to some extent, city health officer Dr. Mathew Danton said yesterday.

Yvonne McGowan, 17, of Asquith died yesterday after a short illness.

Some Saskatoon schools have reported absenteeism running as high as 20 per cent, and one of the city's three hospitals announced that visiting would be curtailed for an indefinite period in an effort to curb the outbreak.

Dr. Danton said indications were it will prove to be the Asian variety.

LONG BEACH, Calif.—"I prayed to God: please, no heart attack, please let me save these children," a 68-year-old baby-sitter with a history of heart trouble said after she braved flames to save her three young charges.

Mrs. Florence Paradis said she smelled smoke while she was tending the three children of Mrs. Marjorie Braswell, 35, so "I opened the bedroom door and all I could see were smoke and flames."

Mrs. Paradis groped her way through the heavy smoke and carried Timmy, 7, to safety, then returned and carried out Marsha Sue, 14 months, while leading John, 10.

OTTAWA—Three prominent Canadian women have arranged a "tourist trip" to Communist China in August. They are Ontario M.P.s Margaret Aitken and Jean Casselman and Toronto broadcaster Claire Wallace. Mrs. Aitken says: "We're just going as ordinary tourists."

HOLLYWOOD — Barbara Burns, 21, jailed daughter of the late comedian Bob Burns, pleaded yesterday for a chance as an actress to save her from a life plagued by narcotics, and a network television show, Lawless Years, immediately offered her a job when her sentence ends in six weeks.

WATKINS, Colo.—Col. John Stapp, rocket-sled driver dubbed "the fastest man on earth," and his pilot bailed out of a disabled air force jet plane yesterday. Stapp parachuted safely, while the pilot was injured.

NEW YORK — Soviet Premier Khrushchev has suggested to President Eisenhower that they patch up their differences and Nasser is expected to agree if Khrushchev will not oppose his campaign against Communists inside the Arab world.

NEW YORK — Frank Loesser, author and composer of the musical "Most Happy Felicia," and singer Jo Sullivan, star of the production, will be married Wednesday.

DENVILLE, N.J. — Mrs. Carol Osenbaugh, 29, who battered her small daughter with a hammer was committed to a state mental hospital. Police said she repeatedly beat her eight-year-old daughter on the head while the child cried "Why, Mommy? Why, Mommy?" The girl is in critical condition.

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Pat Williams, 18, a Negro girl, was chosen Miss Sacramento after singing a torchy version of "Lover Come Back to Me." She beat nine white finalists.

ROME — Some Rome newspapers are guessing that perhaps Princess Margaret is in love with 31-year-old Prince Henry of Hesse, a tall, quiet-mannered artist of the house of Savoy, which gave Italy her kings.

LOS ANGELES — Lucien Freud, grandson of the late psychoanalyst Sigmund Freud, was divorced after his wife Caroline testified he said he didn't care what happened to their marriage.

SPokane, Edward Justice, 46, president of the Spokane school board, pleaded guilty to picking up a 16-year-old girl and was sentenced to 90 days in jail for vagrancy.

Woman Grabs Queen Mother

ROME (CP)—A hysterical woman with a baby bundled in her arms grabbed Queen Mother Elizabeth Friday and screamed "bread and work, bread and work."

Mayor Urban Ciochetti, city officials and a crowd of 400 stood aghast as the woman ran forward and clutched the dress of the Queen Mother as she stood on the steps of Rome's ancient city hall.

Four policemen assigned to guard the visiting Queen Mother leaped into action. The woman was hurled to the ground. Police clapped their hands over her mouth to stop further outcries. She was dragged away, struggling.

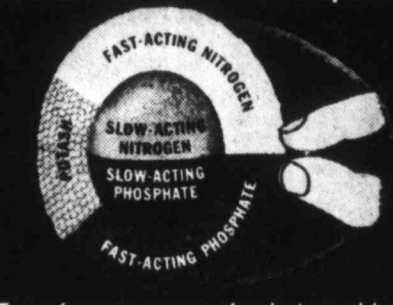

The Queen Mother was as unruffled as though she had received a polite cheer. The woman was identified as Maria Pellicciotti, 29, out of a job and mother of a six-month-old baby.

The Queen Mother later sent a personal note to Mayor Ciochetti asking him to give the incident his "benevolent attention" and to see the woman was shown clemency.

Tree Farms Block Roads

Granting of tree farm licences to Canadian Forest Products Ltd. in the Nimpkish area and Powell River Co. Ltd. in north Vancouver Island timber could deny access to any highway development in the north end of the Island, Zeballos Board of Trade warned yesterday.

In a brief, submitted to public hearings, being conducted by Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston into the tree farm applications, board of trade president H. B. Sutton pointed to the Tofino-Alberni and Campbell River-Gold River roads, where, he said, tree farm licence holders are denying public access.

NO TIMBER ALIENATED

"No timber on any natural geographic or proposed highway route should be alienated without provision for such highway and road development," Mr. Sutton said.

He said the north end of Vancouver Island should be retained for the public with free access as a Canadian west coast tourist and recreation area.

"The granting of further (tree farm) licences could easily spell the end of development of tourist attractions on Vancouver Island," he warned.

"The area lying within the Campbell River-Gold River-Port McNeill triangle is probably the most scenic area on Vancouver Island," he said.

Mr. Sutton claimed "at least one of the applications encroaches on the Kiyuquot public working circle, thereby denying to the independent or 'gyppo' logger his already limited opportunity."

HON. RAY WILLISTON
... public denied access?

He said that "as an incorporated village bordering on a management licence, we find that other developments in a management area are negligible as no public facilities exist to encourage this development. Proportionately, the 'gyppo' logger and open town contribute immeasurably more to development."

ASSESS AREA

Speaking for the provincial department of conservation, Ron Gadsby asked that before any tree farm licences are granted that the recreation department be afforded an opportunity to assess the area involved from a recreational standpoint.

"We would like to have any land with recreational value removed from the licence area," he said.

Counsel Ronald Howard for Western Forest Management Association protested to Mr. Williston that the hearings are "a farce and a public sham."

He charged the government had already made up its mind to grant the applications of Canadian Forest Products Ltd.

Mr. Howard claimed that evidence should be given under oath as it was in the hearings under the late Gordon Sloan. "We fail to see how the honorable minister can acquire facts upon which to base his decisions from statements not made under oath and not subject to cross-examination," C. B. Swanson, WFMA representative said. Decision in the application has been reserved.

Lineup for Lots Grows Longer

DUNCAN—A retired bank manager, secretary of Cowichan School District 65, and an office employee joined two others in a long vigil on the city hall steps here yesterday. They became third, fourth and fifth in line to buy some of the 158 Centennial Heights lots going on sale this morning.

They slept in the 7-by-15-foot city hall vestibule expecting at any time to receive "reinforcements."

It was expected there would be 20 persons in the land rush lineup before daybreak.

Waiting at press time were James Cairns, first, whose wife started the queue at 7.45 a.m. Wednesday; William Jaynes, second; W. W. Barry Cocks, retired banker, third; G. F. Dyson, school board secretary, fourth, and Bert Warrender, cmf r m f w d d l fifth.

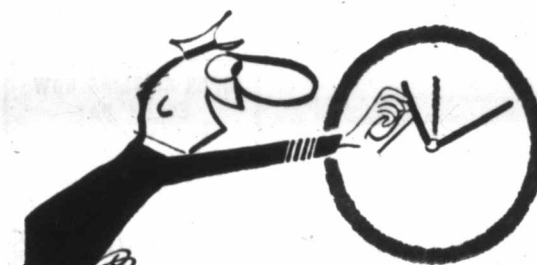

Mr. Cocks selected another when he found Mr. Jaynes, ahead of him in line, wanted the same lot. They have told each other which choice lots they have long waited to secure.

Swift Army Evacuation Was 'Very Successful'

DUNCAN—More than 800 Work Point Barracks personnel in the First Battalion, Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry, were evacuated from Esquimalt to Duncan yesterday in a "very successful" civil defence exercise. Brig. J. W. Bishop, B.C. area commander, said the

Esquimalt brigade received their orders at 8 a.m. and "they were all here at 10.30 a.m."

PPCLI Lieut. Col. J. C. Allan explained their part in the nation-wide exercise was "to test our ability to pack up and evacuate Esquimalt as quickly as possible."

Tiger Mound Staff Proves No Mystery In American League

Detroit Tigers are confused, perhaps understandably so considering their 1-10 record in the American League.

Tigers claim all they need is a power hitter, but by the time they find one they may not have any pitchers left to use with him. While Rick Farrell has been pleading with the opposition to trade him a slugger, his pitchers have been giving up runs in bonus bundles.

Last night the Tigers lost, 10-1, to Kansas City Athletics, a team with a lineup that will never be confused with Murrer's Row. What scares Farrell is that it's beginning to look like a trend is indicated. In the past four games the Tigers' 15-man staff has given up 44 runs, and the Tiger batsmen have produced a whopping total of seven (7).

But while the Tigers, supposedly contenders, slog along in the cellar, the Cleveland Indians, supposedly nothing, fly merrily along in first place. The Tribe needed luck to do it, but turned in the Indians' fourth straight win and their 10th in 11 games with a 6-4 decision over Chicago White Sox. Victory extended their lead to 3½ games over the idle New York Yankees.

Indians scored two unearned runs in the eighth inning to break the tie and win. Vic Power singled, scored on a sacrifice, a wild throw and a passed ball. Woody Held's sacrifice fly brought in the other run. Humberto Robinson, the third pitcher after starter Herb Score, got the win.

Vic Wertz drove in five runs as Boston Red Sox beat Washington Senators, 7-2, in the other American League game. Over in the National League, Milwaukee Braves maintained their half-game lead with a 10-7 victory over Cincinnati Redlegs. Eddie Mathews hit his fifth and sixth homers of the season, one with the bases loaded, to preserve the win for Joey Jay.

Los Angeles Dodgers held on to second place, but it took 10 innings for a 3-2 victory over St. Louis Cardinals. Duke Snider's pinch-hit single brought home the winning run after Gene Green had sent the game into overtime with a homer in the ninth off Johnny Podres.

Jordan on Top at the Finish

You'd never know it by the picture, but this is a boxing match, not the main event on a wrestling card. Referee Harry Kessler, challenger Virgil Akins (black trunks), and welterweight champion

Don Jordan wound up in a welter of confusion on and under the ropes in 14th round of last night's title fight in St. Louis. Jordan, on the bottom here, came on to retain his crown with a 15-round decision.

VIEWSON SPORT By Red Smith

Louis Greenberg is a little old guy who has knocked around at this and that through a long and comparatively blameless life, growing in grace and wisdom over the years but not in stature. He is slightly taller than a 10-cent beer and busy as a creak of mash. These nights he operates as general factotum at Yonkers Raceway, doing what chores need to be done when he doesn't have something going for him in the Class 22 Pace.

One day last fall the telephone rang in the track publicity office. "Is Irving Rudd there?" "Irving Rudd?" the caller was startled by the vehemence of the reply. "Irving Rudd? Nu, Irving Rudd is in school, where else? You won't know what day it is maybe? You Kippur, you shnook, the biggest holy day in the year, and you should be looking to find Irving Rudd like he would be a guy or something to work in the office on Yom Kippur! You would be asking next for Lewis Burton maybe, or Marty Tannenbaum or—"

Original Zoot-Suiter

Chances are most regulars at Yonkers know Mr. Greenberg by sight, though not necessarily by name. He wears a cap and spectacles and is generally smoking a heater about ten inches long. He favors sports jackets, bow ties and slacks, not necessarily matched with loving care. ("Louie," a friend has said, "was wearing zoot suits before they were invented.")

In the autumn, five minutes after the finish of the last race in New York, Mr. Greenberg is in his car heading for the Jersey Turnpike. Two days later he can be discovered on the sidewalk in front of the Fifth Street Gym in Miami, resplendent in jacket of robin's-egg blue with chartreuse pants. Nobody knows for sure what he does all winter, but he's back in the North with the first shipment of horses.

Mr. Greenberg gets home from work about 3 a.m. or later and parks wherever he can find space on the street. At 8 a.m. he arises, dresses, goes down and moves his car across the street. He retires again until 10, when it is necessary to crawl out of the sack once more and move the heater about ten inches in the clear until noon, when all parking becomes illegal in his block. Now he takes the car uptown to the 90's, finds another two-hour nap gets him sharp for his working day.

No matter how conscientious a citizen may be, the odds are that if he drives regularly he'll run afoul of the law sooner or later. Mr. Greenberg discovered this one night last summer when a cop flagged him down on the Maj. Deegan Expressway. On account of his size, not even his cap was visible from the prowl car as he sat behind the wheel, and the cop wanted to investigate this radar-guided vehicle.

Expressway Jockey

Since then Mr. Greenberg has peached on a pair of briefcases while driving. He handles the machine skillfully. One evening another Yonkers employee hitched a ride to Manhattan with him after the last race. Weary after a long day, and confident that he was in capable hands, the passenger dozed off.

In the twilight zone between sleeping and waking, the passenger became conscious of a voice. "All right," it was saying, "take it easy, boy, just tuck back along the rail. All right, now we make our move. To the outside first—come on boy, let's make it a big move—now we'll save ground on the turn."

All of a sudden the passenger was wide awake. Mr. Greenberg was rehearsing race strategy on the Maj. Deegan Expressway. The passenger remained awake.

Mr. Greenberg is respected as a student of racing form, and his advice is sought frequently by bettors. He is not ungenerous in this respect, but he has his own rules about it. A casual acquaintance sounded him out and was advised to bet a horse named No. 2.

The player did so. During the race he was aware of a horse, excited voice nearby, rooting frantically for No. 4. The man watched in dejection as No. 4 swept home in front, then looked around for the lucky rooster. He saw jubilant Mr. Greenberg holding a winning ticket aloft.

"Louie!" the man cried. "You had him, No. 4? You told me No. 2?" Mr. Greenberg fixed him with a glare of withering contempt. "Shnook!" he said. "Who are you, I should be giving you winners?"

Mounties Nearing PCL Basement

Vancouver Mounties sank within half a game of the Pacific Coast Baseball League basement last night, courtesy of the San Diego Padres.

Mounties, who still haven't found the plate power they were reputed to have, were held to five hits by Russ Herman at San Diego, and lost, 5-1. Charles Beamon went all the way for the Mounties and gave up just nine hits, but two were home runs by Mitchell June and Fred Hatfield.

Sacramento Solons held on to their one-game lead, edging Spokane Indians, 4-3, behind the fine relief pitching of Bill Dailey, who struck out eight of the 11 batters he faced after taking over in the seventh inning.

In other games, Seattle Rainiers bounced Phoenix Giants, 14-7, and Salt Lake City Bees beat Portland Beavers, 6-1.

Petes Take Lead In Memorial Cup

WINNIPEG—Four consecutive second-period goals carried Peterborough to a 5-4 win over Winnipeg Braves here Friday night in the opening game of the best-of-seven Memorial Cup final.

A crowd of 6,239 witnessed the hard-hitting, fast-skating game that saw Winnipeg grab a 1-0 first-period lead before wilting under Peterborough's steady barrage.

Second game of the series goes Sunday afternoon at Winnipeg and if the opener is any indication, it could be one of the roughest finals on record. Peterborough's Larry Babcock scored two of the second period goals for his club while Winnipeg's Laurie Langrell also scored twice.

Peterborough—Goal: Dejorje; Defense: Roberts, Plager, Hamilton.

Five New Candidates For Sid Thomas Prize

Rush of late entries has produced five new candidates for the Sid Thomas Trophy.

Letters received yesterday chose Ollie Goldsmith, Wilbur Webb, Susan Butt, Porky Andrews and Doug Bam-brough as the outstanding figure on Victoria's amateur sports scene during the past year. They join a list of candidates that takes in almost every phase of the local sports picture. The trophy, in memory of the late Daily Colonist sports editor, will be awarded to the athlete or sports official chosen by a special committee headed by sports editor Jim Tang. Winner receives the trophy, replica, and an engraved watch, while the writer of the best nominating letter gets $25.

CLOSED THURSDAY

Contest closed last Thursday midnight, but letters bearing an earlier postmark will be accepted.

Letters received yesterday listed the following reasons for the writers' choices: Goldsmith was nominated by Margaret Weir, 1455 Edgware, for "giving tirelessly of his time, four or five nights a week, in coaching basketball teams for the First United Church Fellowship Group." One of Goldsmith's teams, in the bantam division, won a bantam division provincial title this year.

Webb was the choice of Mrs. J. N. Forde, 704 Wilson. He was runner-up for the city tennis championship in 1957, won it this year, and placed second in the B.C. roll-offs while breaking the tournament record.

TENNIS PROSPECT

Susan Butt, the city's outstanding tennis prospect, was selected by Mrs. Herbert Brown, 176 Maddock Ave. She is one of the top-ranking players in Canada.

U.K. Rugby Tourists Don't Lack Talent

(British Lions, a touring representative rugby team, will play in Vancouver Sept. 27. More's a review of their lineup by former Daily Colonist sports writer Ian Glenday who is on an extended tour of Europe.)

By IAN GLENDAY
LONDON—British Lions, facing a strenuous five-month tour of Australia, New Zealand and Canada, have been fortified with plenty of talent, particularly among the forwards, for only the third "down-under" visit by a British Isles rugby team since the First World War.

The selection committee, faced with the problem of picking a well-represented side that would be best equipped to stand up to the rugged play of the Australian and New Zealand clubs, caused a few surprises in arriving at the 30 players who will make the trip. Lions will play 33 matches—six in Australia, 25 in New Zealand and two in Canada.

Particular attention has been paid in choosing the forwards. Ruggedness and durability will be the keynote of the pack, although it can be said that speed was not sacrificed. There was plenty of talent from which to choose in every position except centre three-quarter, a position that may prove to be the touring club's biggest headache. Material for that position is a bit thin in the British Isles at the moment and the selection committee was further handicapped because two of the logical contenders to make the trip could not go.

STRONG LINEUP
Included in the impressive lineup are seven players who have been members of a previous major British tour, unprecedented in the selection of touring teams, and eight players who have performed at one time or another for the Barbarians. Wales and Ireland have each placed nine internationals on the team. England is represented by eight players and Scotland, which some feel has been slighted, is represented by four internationals.

P. G. D. Robbins, one of England's outstanding forwards but overlooked in all four internationals this season, partly made up for this oversight by his inclusion on the Lions. It was then, a bit ironic that Robbins was injured while playing for the Barbarians and likely will miss the tour.

WELSH SPEEDSTER
Among the outstanding players are M. C. Thomas, the little Welsh speedster who has been capped 26 times. He was the top Lions' scorer on the 1953 tour of Australia and New Zealand with 96 points, and a member of the Barbarians who played in British Columbia last year.

Also included are H. F. McLeod, who has been capped 26 times for Scotland and played in his first international in 1954; R. V. Meredith, capped 23 times for Wales, and R. H. Williams, who has played 21 times for Wales.

Complete team roster:
Fullback: T. E. Davies (Llanelli and Wales, 15 caps); K. J. F. Scotland (Cambridge U. and Scotland, nine caps); Backs: F. B. Jackson (Coventry and England, 18 caps); D. Hewitt (Queen's University of Belfast and Ireland, 10 caps); J. R. C. Young (Oxford U. and England, one cap); M. J. Price (Pontypool, R.A.F. and Wales, three caps); J. Butterfield (Northampton and England, 20 caps); M. C. Thomas (Newport and Wales, 26 caps); N. H. Brophy (University College, Dublin and Ireland, five caps); A. J. F. O'Reilly (Leicester and Ireland, 20 caps); M. A. F. English (Bournemouth and Ireland, four caps); A. R. W. Rimmer (Manchester U. and England, four caps).
Scrum half: R. E. G. Jeaps (Northampton and England); S. Coughtrie (Edinburgh Acad. and Scotland, four caps).
Utility back: G. H. Waddell (Cambridge U. and Scotland, 19 caps).
Forwards: R. Prosser (Pontypool and Wales, 14 caps); H. P. McLeod (Ravick and Scotland, 26 caps); S. Millar (Bathurst and Wales, 10 caps); R. G. M. Wood (Garryowen and Ireland, eight caps); A. R. Dawson (Wanderers and Ireland, eight caps); R. Y. Meredith (Newport and Wales, 23 caps); R. H. Williams (Llanelli and Wales, 21 caps); W. R. Evans (Cardiff and Wales, one cap); W. A. Mulcahy (University College, Dublin and Ireland, eight caps); R. W. D. Marquess (Harlequins and Scotland, one cap); A. Ashcroft (Waterloo and England, 14 caps); J. Paul (Swansea and Wales, 10 caps); P. O. D. Robbins (Moseley and England, 12 caps); N. A. Murphy (Cardiff, one cap); H. J. Morgan (Aberystwyth and Wales, five caps).

First Place Hope Held by Evcoes

Victoria Evcoes hope to continue their winning ways this afternoon at Macdonald Park when they host Vancouver Labatts in the local half of two scheduled Pacific Coast Soccer League games.

Although the season is only a week old, a time when first place means little more than prestige, coach Willie Hamilton's Evcoes could take over top spot today with a win.

Evcoes have won their only game to date while Labatts, with a draw against Continentals, could also own the early season lead.

NEW PROBLEM
Coach Hamilton also has another problem on his hands. The PCSL player deadline is rapidly approaching and Hamilton will have to decide on his 16 signed players for

Labatts vs. Shamrocks Wednesday

Shrine Game All Set

Norm Baker, the proud poppa of Victoria Shamrocks, will put his youngsters on public view for the first time Wednesday night at Memorial Arena.

Occasion, of course, is the annual Shrine lacrosse game against Nanaimo Labatts, and the action should provide fans with a fair idea of what the Irish will have for the Inter-City Lacrosse League season. Baker will go into the game without four of his juniors, all writing examinations at UBC, but there will be enough of the kids around to show how much promise there is in the Shamrock youth movement.

All proceeds from Wednesday's game will go in aid of Shrine charities, with the main portion regulated toward operation of 17 hospitals for crippled children in Canada and the United States. Everyone—players, officials, fans and reporters—will pay their way into the arena.

The game will be something of a preview of the opening game of the league schedule. The same teams meet at Nanaimo May 2. Against the youthful Shamrocks, coach Don Ashbee of Labatts will send a veteran club that rules as a solid contender to topple the Mann Cup champion New Westminster Salmonbellies.

The Shamrocks have added some interesting sidelight attractions in an effort to pack

Lawn Bowling Roundup

Burnside Club Opens Up Today

Members of Burnside Lawn Bowling Club will hold something of a "sneak preview" of the new season this afternoon.

The Burnside club will open the 1959 season at 2 p.m., with ladies' president Dot Staples rolling the first jack and Keith Mackenzie delivering the first bowl.

Visitors are welcome, and refreshments will be served. It will be another three weeks before the other five clubs in the Greater Victoria area are ready for action, but officials are confident of at least equalling their last, and greatest, season.

Last year the city association hosted the Canadian championships, and eastern officials were so impressed at the way matters were handled that Victoria is reported to have the inside track when next the championships are held in the west.

Lake Hill Lawn Bowling Club opens Wednesday at 2 p.m., and three other clubs start season's play one week from today.

Canadian Pacific and Victoria Lawn Bowling Club open at 2 p.m., and the opening festivities start at Victoria West club at 2.15.

Oak Bay Lawn Bowling Club, beginning its second season of operation, will probably start in about three weeks.

Plotting Death of a City

Plotting atomic damage to Greater Victoria in yesterday's civil defence exercise are Major E. W. (June) Thomas, adjutant, and Capt. John Pettit, staff officer, militia group headquarters, Bay Street Armouries. They are pictured in the operations and signal centre on Bay Street.

You're Not Reading This, You're Dead or Evacuated

An Atom Bomb Burst; Civil Defence Took Over

Theoretically, you're not reading this. You've either been evacuated or obliterated.

That's all according to the local phase of yesterday's nation-wide civil defence scheme, Exercise Co-operation III, which opened at 8 a.m. yesterday and concluded at 8 a.m. today.

With minor snags, the operation ran well. Basically, it was a training scheme for civil defence workers across Canada.

FIRST ALERT 1.30 A.M.

For co-ordination's sake, all times used in the plan were Greenwich Mean Time. Thus, the first alert came at 1.30 a.m. yesterday in the British Columbia area, and civilians were "evacuated" at once from such major target areas as Victoria and Vancouver.

By 8 a.m. all residents of Greater Victoria had been removed to North Saanich except, as the situation report of that hour said, for "11,000 elderly persons who refused to move."

These were the "victims" of a one-megaton atomic bomb which, at 1.55 p.m. yesterday, exploded in the Willows Park area and spread complete destruction over a radius of three miles.

ANOTHER FOLLOWED

This bomb followed another which burst at 1.25 p.m. in the strait 15 miles west of Victoria.

An even bigger atomic bomb levelled Vancouver at 2.10 p.m.

All these "missiles" were fired from submarines — in theory, of course.

Civil defence headquarters for the province were set up during the 24-hour crisis on Keating Crossroad, and in this busy hive four shifts of operators kept a round-the-clock eye on developments in B.C. and across Canada.

CONTROL AREAS

Connected with it were zone control areas at Sooke, Nanaimo, Abbotsford, Kelowna, Prince George, Nelson, Cranbrook, Kitimat, Powell River, Trail, Prince Rupert and Kamloops.

Each area had to "operate" on messages prearranged by national headquarters but unknown until their reception in the specified centres.

Communications, vital in such a scheme or in such a crisis, were assisted by more than 1,000 amateur radio operators throughout the province — and complicated yesterday by atmospheric conditions which chopped up radio links and broke teletype messages into garble.

In addition, in a staff that is largely voluntary, there were occasional and unavoidable gaps which sometimes left plot-boards untouched or outdated.

However, civil defence officials at headquarters were highly gratified by the scheme's success.

Fluoridation 'Effective, Practical'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Fluoridation has proved "effective, safe and practical" in reducing dental caries, says the Pacific Northwest section of the American Water Works Association.

The convention was told that B.C. has six installations for fluoridating water supplies for 48,000 persons, compared with 14 installations in Washington serving 140,948 persons and 13 in Oregon serving 109,691.

Daylight Time

Switch Affects Ferries

Switch to daylight saving Sunday will affect travellers using mainland ferries out of Victoria, Sidney or Nanaimo.

Both Canadian Pacific and Washington State ferries will continue to operate on Pacific standard time one hour behind when clocks are switched to daylight saving time.

Thus, the daily CP sailing from here to Vancouver will continue to leave at 3:15 p.m. by the steamship's own clocks which remain on standard time, while clocks elsewhere will show 4:15 Pacific daylight time.

Black Ball Ferries, Trans-Canada Air Lines and Vancouver Island Coach Lines will make the changeover Sunday to daylight saving.

TCA will add two daily Victoria-Vancouver flights and one Victoria-Seattle flight at the time of the changeover. This brings to 15 the scheduled round trips between Victoria and Vancouver, and five to Seattle.

Establishment of a juvenile and family court in Greater Victoria has been under investigation by the attorney-general's department "for some little while," Attorney-General Bonner said yesterday.

He said such a move would require municipal co-operation.

Parkers at 'Bay' Go Up in Future

The Hudson's Bay Company has called for tenders for the construction of a massive car parking building adjacent to the department store in Victoria.

The building is to be erected on the site of the present car park at the rear of the department store.

Plans for the three-storey building have been prepared by the Victoria architectural firm of Wade and Stockill, on the instructions of the Rupert Land Company, the land-owning subsidiary of HBC.

PREPARE MODEL

An official of HBC said yesterday that details of the plan were not immediately available for publication, but that a model was being prepared at head office in Winnipeg.

The present parking site handles 300 cars and the new building will accommodate at least double that number.

OVERPASS

It is proposed to link the garage building with the department store not only at the main floor level but by overpass to the third floor.

When the building is completed there will be accommodation for about 1,400 cars in the vicinity of the store.

'My Very Own'

Centenarian Got Her Hearing Aid

Prompt response has greeted a picture and story about 100-year-old Mrs. Susan Moore, Manor Private Hospital, and her need for an old-fashioned hearing aid.

Picture and story appeared in the Colonist Thursday, her birthday.

Color Slides To Be Shown

P. J. Crofts, assistant to the general manager of the B.C. Power Commission, will show color slides of nature subjects at the Victoria Natural History Society meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Provincial Museum.

Friday, the mail brought an old-style aid and a letter from Mrs. June Jarrett, Chemainus.

After reading the story, said Mrs. Jarrett's letter, "I am very happy to send you along one my mother used for many years." She ended with a wish that Mrs. Moore herself might use the aid for years to come.

George Taylor, operator of the hospital at 338 Foul Bay, reported Mrs. Moore as being delighted not only because the hearing aid worked so well, but because "it is my very own."

Greetings for her 100th birthday were received by Mrs. Moore from Queen Elizabeth, from Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, Defence Minister George Pearkes, Premier W. A. C. Bennett, and others.

Heliport When Needed

Victoria will be ready to develop a heliport near the centre of the city whenever it is needed, Mayor Percy Scurrell said yesterday.

Public Works Minister W. N. Chant urged the city earlier this week to start making preparations for a heliport on the industrial reserve or the former Crowe-Gonnesson mill property.

"The city already has a site at the far end of the Point Ellice bridge on the industrial reserve. If the Crowe-Gonnesson site is privately developed as a heliport we of course won't develop that one, but if it isn't, our site will be developed when it's needed," the mayor said.

"It wouldn't take long to develop it. In two or three months we could put in everything necessary."

Tulip Farms Open

Five Saanich tulip farms will be visited during the second annual tulip day tour today.

Death Sentence Commuted

Pleaders Thanked For Brother's Life

Grateful to Signers Says Victoria Man

Greater Victoria signers of a petition to save the life of Robert Chapman, 19, condemned to hang for murder, were thanked last night following commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment.

The condemned man's brother, Leslie Chapman, 29, of Victoria, who personally led an appeal for signers in the Greater Victoria area, phoned the Colonist from the family home at Rosedale, B.C., to express his gratitude.

The younger Chapman was under sentence to be hanged, Tuesday, for the Oct. 16 slaying of a third brother, John, on the family farm in the Fraser Valley.

DRAMATICALLY LIFTED His death sentence was dramatically lifted by the federal cabinet yesterday.

The older brother, Leslie, worked every night for three weeks recently to obtain signers to the mercy petition. He collected 900 signatures himself.

Churches to which he had sent petition sheets helped raise the total to 4,000 or more.

The father of the three boys, Norman Chapman, also expressed deep appreciation last night for "all the people have done in pleading for Robert's life."

SENTENCE STILL STANDS Death sentence still stood for Leo Mantha, 35-year-old tugboatman convicted in Victoria of the slaying last Sept. 6 of Able Seaman Aaron Jenkins, 23, at HMCS Naden. Date of his hanging was set for this Tuesday, also.

His lawyer, George Gregory, was reported in Ottawa, making a last ditch appeal on Mantha's behalf.

Festival Tough Competition

Indians Hope to Steal Victoria Day Spotlight

Vancouver Island Indian Festival will prove tough competition for other attractions on Victoria Day weekend.

This year's festival to be held May 17 and 18 at Maple Bank Park—is expected to attract many more than the 20,000 who attended the spectacle last year, Chief John Albany of the Songhees Band said last night.

Attractions include tribal dances, choirs, war canoe races, track and field events, tug-of-war and a beauty contest to choose the festival princess.

For the gastronomically-minded, there will be barbecued salmon, fresh crab and tons of clams around the cooking fires.

The festival will open with 11 o'clock mass out of doors on the Songhees Indian reserve celebrated by Fr. Bernard P. Hanley.

The public is invited to participate in many of the athletic events during the two-day meet.

First display of traditional dances will be at 2 p.m., followed about an hour later by the princess contest and crowning of the darkeyed beauty selected from representatives of bands throughout the province and the state of Washington.

A choir of children from the Tsali Indian day school will then give a display of singing and dancing.

The 11-man war canoes will compete over a five-mile course at 5 p.m. on both days for cups presented by former lieutenant governor, Clarence Wallace and Lieutenant-Governor Frank Ross.

Women will also take part in these international war canoe races—but over a shorter 1½-mile course, following the men at 6 p.m.

A modern touch will be added to the age-old beat of tribal drums by the "hill-billy" music of Chief Dan George of Maplewood, B.C., and his band.

"For old-timers only" the Indian bone game, known as Lahall, will be demonstrated.

Parking is available for more than 5,000 cars. Admission for the day is 50 cents, with children under 12 allowed to enter free.

For Proudfoot Remark

Labor Demands Public Apology

Victoria Labor Council secretary-treasurer A. W. Toone last night demanded "nothing less than a public apology" from Ald. D. J. Proudfoot.

The demand arose from the alderman's description of a conciliation board's recommendation of 19 cent across-the-board raise to civic outside workers as "kind of stupid."

Mr. Toone said the remarks of members of city council concerning the matter of wage increases to outside workers "are in the poorest taste and indicate poor and unfair labor-management relations."

"I think the alderman's insinuation is cause for much concern," he said.

Liquor Prices Up Soon

Liquor prices will go up before the end of the month, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said yesterday, but he didn't say how soon or by how much.

There has been speculation that a 26-ounce bottle of whisky will be upped by about 25 cents a bottle. Recent federal tax increase on spirits is equivalent to about 12 cents on a 25-ounce bottle.

Military Police 'Missing'

Former military men, veterans of 1914 campaigns in the First World War, reacted last night much the same as they must have done some 40-odd years ago at the mention of "military police."

When military policemen were asked to stand during the local Red Chevron Association's roll call in a banquet at the Blue Room, 1303 Broad, many of the men let out a loud "boo," followed by a round of laughter from the group.

NONE PRESENT

There were no former military policemen present, however, among the 68 members representing some 30 Canadian and Imperial units who served in an active theatre of war in the year 1914.

Two women dropped in to pay their respects to the Red Chevron later in the evening. They were former nursing sisters Eleanore Parker and Murney Pugh, both of 2493 Eastdowne, and both of whom went overseas as nurses with the first Canadian contingent, serving in France with the Canadian Army Medical Corps.

VIVID MEMORY

The banquet commemorated April 22, 1915, when poison gas was used by the German Army for the first time in war. Recollection of the horror of gas as a weapon of war is "still fresh and vivid," a Red Chevron spokesman said.

Hotelmen Rap 'Unfair' Liquor Hours

Clubs Grab Late Tipplers

Battle for the business of the late imbibers is looming in the wake of a hotelman's outburst in Victoria last night.

J. Roy Corbett, executive vice-president of the Canadian Hotels Association, charged the present system of selling late-hour drinks gives an "unfair" advantage to private, fraternal and country clubs over the licensed hotels.

He said the association may seek legislation similar to that passed in the United States recently to provide for loss of tax-exempt privileges for some establishments which make their facilities available to the general public.

For a start in B.C. the federal association will back a B.C. Hotels Association brief to the liquor board asking for identical hours for hotel lounges and private club bars.

At present hotel lounges must stop serving drinks at 11:30 p.m. while bars in private clubs may serve drinks up to 12:30 a.m. on weekdays.

Elevator Will Whisk Driver, Car to Room

Hotel association vice-president J. Roy Corbett said last night the hotel guest of tomorrow will be whisked to his room by a giant elevator without getting out of his car.

The hotel of the future will be built in a circle with rooms on the outside and parking in the centre on each floor, he said.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: I was engaged at 17 and thought I was madly in love. The rest of the story is an old one. A month before the wedding my fiancé decided he wanted a "pure and virtuous girl" although he knew good and well I was pure and virtuous before he talked me into "proving my love."

He took back his ring and within three months he married someone else. I thought I'd die of heartbreak and shame.

I began to drink and lost all respect for myself. Every night I went out with a different fellow. When my father put me out of the house I really hit bottom. There's no point in going into the sordid details.

Two years ago I joined A.A. I've been dry for 17 months. I'm 24 now, and trying to make a decent life for myself. I'm going with a lovely, respectable widower with two children. Believe me, I'm paying for my sins. Do you know what it's like, pretending to be someone you're not? Whenever I see a face from the past I wonder if he'll tell.

Shall I confess everything to my wonderful guy? Or would it be better to remain silent and hope he won't hear anything from the people around town? Please help me. I'm a nervous wreck.—KATE.

Don't Live in Fear

Dear Kate: I advise girls who have made ONE mistake not to go into the past with a fine-tooth comb, but when the story runs into volumes it's a different matter.

It's better to tell him than to live in fear of being exposed. Just hope and pray your "wonderful guy" is one in a million and can forgive and forget. A girl who has succeeded in pulling herself out of the gutter deserves a second chance. I hope you get it.

Dear Ann: My 28-year-old daughter recently went to work in an office where there is a twice-divorced woman. This woman tells nasty stories and is a bad influence on the decent girls.

She knows how to stay on the right side of the boss and can talk herself out of any spot. Once she had three martinis for lunch and had to sleep it off on the cot in the ladies' room. When my daughter tells me these stories I get so furious I can't see straight. Why is it the boss never sees through these hussies? They get the privileges and the raises every time.

I've considered advising my daughter to quit and look for another job in order to get away from this bad influence. Do you think I'm right?—MOTHER WHO CARES.

Dear M.W.C.: If your daughter is 28, she should be able to cope with the situation without coaching from mama. There's a variety of good and bad every place. The next office might have two such women, or a man who is worse.

Don't suggest your daughter quit and look for another job. There are nearly five million unemployed right now, and she might be looking for a long time.

A Jealous Streak

Dear Ann Landers: I'm 14 and a half and have been going with a boy I thought was real nice, until last week. He has a very jealous streak which I used to think was cute. Then I realized I couldn't even say Hi to another boy without Ellis getting mad.

Last week Ellis saw me talking to a boy at the bus stop. When I got home the phone was ringing. He said he wanted the charm bracelet back that he gave me for Christmas as well as the teddy-bear I got on Valentine's Day. He even had the nerve to request $6 which he figures he spent on me since the first of the year.

My folks have advised me to give him the gifts back but not the money. Do you think I should ask him for the silk scarf I gave him for his birthday? My brother could use it.—LYDIA.

Dear Lydia: Forget about the scarf and the boy. Sounds like good riddance. (And a pair of angel wings to you—for returning the loot).

Are you tempted to smoke because the crowd does? If so, send for Ann Landers' new booklet, "Teenage Smoking," enclosing with your request 10 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

(Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope).

A Lovelier You

FASHION PREVIEW. Before important fashion shows, the models are called together for a dress rehearsal. The main purpose, as you might imagine, is a chance for the producers to see if the clothes look as well on the runway as in the fitting room, if the accessories look as well on the clothes as on the counter. That way, necessary changes are spotted and made before show time. What the audience thereafter sees is perfection.

From a personal viewpoint, a model also finds dress rehearsals useful. By trying out her costumes, she gains confidence in their appearance on her. And she knows from experience that confidence ease—is an enormous plus in wearing clothes beautifully on or off the runway.

Plainly, every lass and lady could benefit from a dress rehearsal of new clothes. To mean anything, though, you have to make a thorough job of it. Trying on an outfit and its accessories is not enough. You also must try out the underpinnings and make-up you mean to wear with it. Then there can be no slip-ups when you spring it on your public and so your confidence will soar.

PAINTLESS REDUCING

To lose up to ten pounds without a struggle, send for my leaflet, "Paintless reducing." No rigid dieting, no heavy exercising, no discomfort! All advice in sane, safe, easy-to-take and effective. Tradition Shattered By Crown Prince

TOKYO (UPI)—Crown Prince Akihito is about to shatter another Japanese imperial tradition.

He and his bride, Princess Michiko, will drop in on her family at the Shoda home next week for a social visit.

No crown prince of Japan has ever set foot in the home of his bride's family, even when he bride was a first or second cousin.

GREAT BREAK

Akihito's first great break with precedent was marrying Michiko in the first place. She was a commoner, and no commoner had ever been chosen in the 2,619-year history of the Japanese throne to be the consort of a future emperor.

The 25-year-old crown prince has been plugging away at tradition-bound officials of the imperial household agency since his engagement to Michiko last November for permission to visit the Shoda home. There was no precedent, so officials turned him down.

FINALLY YIELDED

An official of the agency announced yesterday, however, that the imperial household agency has finally yielded to Akihito's demands.

According to present plans, Michiko will visit her parents alone in the morning of April 27 or 28, and Akihito will join them in the afternoon. The imperial couple will stay on for a family dinner at the Shoda home in Gotanda, southern Tokyo.

No Doubt About Who Is Boss in Japan

There's no doubt about who is boss in the household of Japanese Crown Prince Akihito and his recent bride, Princess Michiko. Bound by centuries-old tradition, she follows well behind her husband as they leave the Unebi, Japanese shrine, after reporting their recent wedding to the Imperial ancestors. Even honeymooners dare not flout the tradition which ranks a Japanese wife well below her husband.—(AP Photofax)

'Gym Slip' Battle Still On

LONDON (UPI)—Two prominent British women have lost the first round of their fight to get schoolgirls out of their "hideous" uniforms and into something designed by the queen's dressmaker.

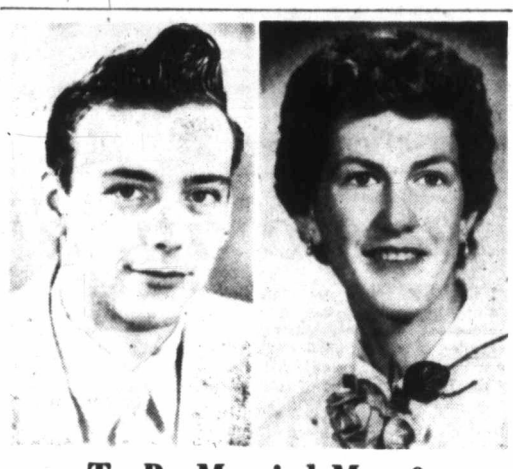

But the battle, the women said, is just beginning.

Minister of education Geoffrey Lloyd rejected a plea by Lady Lewisham and her mother, authoress Barbara Cartland, that he do something about the infamous "gym slip."

The "gym slip" made internationally famous by the "St. Trinian's" cartoons and movies of Roland Searle, is the slightly-varying uniform worn by girls in Britain's private schools.

One critic wrote that most gym slips made the girls look "like carelessly-stuffed sausages." Both Miss Cartland and Lady Lewisham wore them as girls and we hated the hideous things," Miss Cartland said.

Little Boy's Prayer

'Our Father...' Brought Courage

DURAND, Mich. (UPI)—"Our Father, who art in heaven..." The small voice of eight-year-old Gerald Doane lifted in prayer from the hospital cot on which he was being rolled into surgery. "Hallowed be Thy name..." Gerald already has lost his left leg, amputated at the thigh. He had pedaled his bike into a Grand Trunk Western passenger train at a crossing.

"Thy kingdom come..." He was being taken to surgery again because doctors were going to amputate his right leg, too—but hoped to save as much as possible.

"Thy will be done... on earth, as it is in heaven..." But before he went in, he asked the nurses and internes attending him if they could wait just a minute. He wanted to recite the Lord's Prayer.

"For Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever and ever... Amen." The nurses and the internes were all wet-eyed. "I'm ready," said Gerald, quietly.

Garden Notes

Best Time for Raspberries

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

During the last couple of weeks, I must have had at least 40 letters and as many phone calls asking about raspberries—when to plant, how to plant, and what kind to plant. I am delighted to see so much interest in this fruit, for raspberries are an ideal fruit for the home garden, and store-bought berries can't compare in flavor with fruit allowed to ripen naturally on your own back-yard canes.

Raspberries can be planted either in the fall or in the spring. Personally, I favor spring planting, after the soil has dried off sufficiently to work easily, but before the raspberry canes have leafed out fully.

In choosing a site for your raspberry rows, it is a good thing to remember that the greatest enemy of this plant is the wind. Raspberries will get along fairly well in almost any kind of soil, just as long as there is plenty of humus in it and plenty of water available, and the canes are not at all fussy as to how much sunshine they get. But strong and persistent wind they cannot abide, so it is a good idea to select their site to the leeward side of some kind of shelter

belt or windbreak. For the preparation of the soil, nothing is quite so good as a load of well-rotted manure. Raspberry roots are hungry feeders—they have to make a whole new set of canes every year as well as producing a crop of fruit—and wherever you plant them, they are going to be in the same position for a long, long time. They need plenty of good stuff dug in to keep them nourished over the years.

Prepare a strip of soil 4 feet wide for each row of canes, digging at least 2 buckets of manure and 2 double handfuls of bone meal into each running yard of the strip. These additives shouldn't be dug in deeply, for raspberries are shallow rooters, but chopped or mixed thoroughly into the top 6 inches of soil.

When this is done, tread the soil, rake it level, then set out your plants, spacing them 2½ feet apart down the middle of your prepared strip. Make your planting holes wide enough to take the full spread of the roots without any cramping or bending, and deep enough for the roots to set 3 inches deeper than they were in the nursery, as indicated by the soil stains on the stem.

Holding the "stool" of roots in position, cover with soil until the hole is half full, then pause to water the plants in, giving each one 2 quarts with a drop or two of Transplantone or vitamin B1 added. When this drains away, complete the filling in with loose, dry soil. Don't stomp it down, for this would lead to baking and cracking in the sun, but leave it loose and dry on top.

Next comes the most difficult part of the job. Get a grip on yourself, harden your heart, and CUT DOWN all those lovely, newly-planted raspberry canes to little 4-inch stubs! It is a terrible temptation to leave the canes intact, in the hope of picking some fruit this summer, but if you chicken out at this point, you'd only get a smidgen of berries anyway, and you'd ruin the future performance of your bushes in the process. Cut them down, and it'll pay real dividends in 1960.

Washington and Willamette are reliable performers for Vancouver Island and the canes should cost you around $1.50 per dozen quite a bit less if you buy in lots of 100. Black-cap and the Yellow raspberry are connoisseur's items, and may run you as much as 50c per cane.

Conversation Piece

By Rudolf Flesch

Musician 'Slave for Life'

I love books that are made up of nothing but conversation. A new one, "Conversations with Casals" by J. Ma. Corredor, has just been brought out as a paperback (Dutton) and it's one of the finest examples of the species.

For 233 pages the great cellist talks about his boyhood in a small Catalan village, his crowded life as an international virtuoso, playing thousands of times some 50 years all over the world, his friendship with virtually all the musical greats of the past half-century, his ideas on musical composition, on conducting and on playing the cello, his daily life, his moral philosophy, and his sorrow over the tragedy of Spain under Franco.

There is no way of summarizing a book like this; here is a genius and a great human being talking and it's a privilege to be allowed to listen to whatever he says. How does it feel to be one of the musical greats of this world? Casals' answer is surprising. "If one decides to play an instrument conscientiously with all seriousness, one becomes a slave for life," he says.

But the recitals, the applause, the ovations? "The thought of a public concert always gives me a nightmare." And after the performance? "When the instrumentalist goes to bed after a concert he sees his performance like a nightmare... of what it has been... of what it could have been."

"Does this happen to you?" "And how! Every time and always! Once I get to bed, I go through the whole thing in my mind and I see again, with perfect exactitude, everything which went off the rails, and I go through every single note. I cannot get to sleep until I have made this examination, exacting and painful."

Between concerts, Casals' life has been an endless round of work, and still is today. One day, when Mr. Corredor visited the old man in his solitary exile at Prades—years after he had stopped giving concerts—he found Casals busy on a Bach suite, which he had studied and played for the last 60 years. "Every day I discover new things," he said. "Only a few days ago I realized that I was making a mistake in one of the suites."

Casals is almost 82 now, but he has what he calls his "elixir of youth"; he starts every day at the piano, playing Bach preludes and fugues. "It refreshes the spirit and induces a calm and cheerful frame of mind for the day's activities."

Hollywood Today

Kovacs' Comic Star Rising

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Everyone—after the preview here—was talking about Ernie Kovacs' hilarious performance in "It Happened to Jane," the Doris Day-Jack Lemmon starrer. Ernie is grade A star material.

Gina Lollobrigida, with husband Milko Skofic, is making friends at Metro where she's taking English lessons with Gertrude Fogel while awaiting the start of "Never So Few."

"This Earth is Mine" is an unusual picture. The Grapes and Claude Rains look so good you could eat them both right off the screen. Jean Simmons always gives a good account of herself, and Rock Hudson surprised with his new style, which I liked. It was also interesting to see Dorothy McGuire in an older-woman role. She's really still too young for such parts, though.

Suzi Parker is back in town for what she calls "My Comeback," to star in "The Best of Everything" for Jerry Wald at 20th Century-Fox. Suzi is completely recovered from the car accident that took the life of her father, after which her marriage to Pierre De La Salle was dissolved.

June Haver takes in "five or six arena theatres this summer," starring in "La Ronde" with Jose Quintero directing. June will play four of the eight leading-lady roles. Incidentally, her autobiography, "Early Haver," is on its way.

Pier Angeli and her three-year-old son Perry will be parted while she makes the "SOS Pacific" movie in the Canary Islands. Perry, centre of the big battle between Pier and divorced husband Vic Damone, will stay with her twin sister, Marisa Pavan, and Marisa's husband, Jean Pierre Aumont, in Paris until Pier's few weeks of location-ing are concluding.

South's response in his weak four-card suit was an approach bid. He did not wish to bid three clubs, and two hearts would have been inadequate. North's single raise of the hearts was conservative, so when South bid again North jumped to game in hearts.

Had trumps divided 3-2, the four-heart contract would have been unbeatable. Even with the bad break, it required excellent defence to stop the game.

With four trumps in his hand, East signalled frantically for a diamond continuation by dropping the queen.

(Notice that the suit preference signalers who use a high play in this situation as a call for a shift to the higher side suit would have been ruined by this interpretation of the diamond play. A shift to spades would have left declarer in control of the situation.) However, West continued the diamonds and South trumped. South led a trump and permitted West to hold the trick with the queen—his best play. Another diamond lead enabled South to ruff again but this play reduced him to a single trump. When he led toward dummy's ace, there was no way to prevent East from winning two more trump tricks. Declarer did the best he could, winning the trick with the ace and leading good clubs. But East had to make two more tricks in hearts and the contract was defeated.

Her Story Smut or Art?

Lady in Court Again

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Supreme Court yesterday considered the question: Is the movie "Lady Chatterley's Lover" immoral smut or symbolic art?

The New York Board of Regents said the film cannot be shown in that state because it is immoral. Ephraim London, attorney for a motion-picture distributor, asked the high court to lift the ban.

"Lady Chatterley's Lover" is the movie version of D. H. Lawrence's famous novel about an illicit love affair between the married Lady Chatterley and her gardener Mellors. The book has been through numerous court battles in many countries.

London's brief said the regents "failed to comprehend the almost obtrusive symbolism of the film."

"They could not seriously have believed it was intended to encourage married women to run off with their gardeners," he said. "The regents' objection to the film is based upon their lack of faith in the intelligence and character of the New York audience."

Justice John M. Harlan asked Charles Brind, Jr., representing the state, if he considered the film pornographic. "I would go that far," Brind replied. "It depicts adultery—which everybody all through the years has recognized as improper—as a proper standard of behavior."

Pensioner Admits, Denies Threat

Mental examination was recommended in city police court yesterday for pensioner Harry Phillips, 79, of 1325 Johnson, charged with pointing a revolver at his landlady Thursday.

The case was adjourned to May 1 for trial.

The elderly pensioner first said, "I'm perfectly guilty, it was all a mistake," then denied having pointed the revolver at Mrs. Rose Leeking, also of 1325 Johnson.

In the same court Magistrate William Ostler sentenced Edward G. Gray, 784 Fairview, to seven days in jail for driving while under suspension; $40 or in default six days for giving false information to police, and $25 or in default five days for using another person's driver's licence. The time in default was not concurrent.

Magistrate Ostler said he could do no less in view of the fact this was accused's fourth conviction for driving while under suspension.

Three city police officers testified yesterday as trial of Larry Montgomery, 633 Cornwall, on a charge of assaulting a police officer, opened in city court.

Case was then remanded to Monday to obtain testimony of a fourth officer, Const. A. W. Cave, who was not present yesterday because, as prosecutor T. P. O'Grady explained, "I did not think he could contribute anything to the case not already presented."

Evidence was given by constables John Burdny, Brian Ferguson and John Maybin. Magistrate Ostler and defence counsel James J. Proudfoot felt that Const. Cave, present throughout the incident involved in the two charges facing Montgomery, should be heard.

Const. Burdny told the court Montgomery had rushed from the curb and punched him on the jaw after the officer had stopped a car in which Montgomery and two others were riding and was questioning the driver.

'Ear' To Stars

TORONTO (CP)—The National Research Council may construct this year a giant $2,000,000 super-sensitive radio-telescope, according to Dr. D. A. MacRae of the University of Toronto and the David Dunlap Observatory.

He told the Toronto branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada that construction of the radio-telescope, estimated to cost $2,000,000 to $3,000,000, will depend on federal government approval.

He indicated the proposed site will be 120 miles west of Ottawa.

Researchers To Move

At Ottawa, NRC officials said their radio research laboratories just outside the city are to be shifted to escape interference and that talks have been held with the Ontario government about a site in Algonquin Park.

The proposed new radio-telescope would be used for research other than that of the Dominion observatories' radio-telescope which it is hoped will be operating at Penitence this fall.

Thirteenth sermon in a series "The Shorter Catechism" will be given by Rev. J. L. W. McLean during the morning service at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. A series from the Book of Joshua, "From Manna to Corn," will be continued in the evening.

It Depends on Your Viewpoint

Perspective makes all the difference in looking at things, as demonstrated by these two "similar" shapes, viewed at Hamburg, West Germany. At left is a corner of the Hamburg Chile

House, a merchants' headquarters since it was built in 1925. Its twin at right is a drydock view of the liner Hanseatic.

Grass Roots Evangelism Test

Slum 'Laboratory'

NEW YORK (UPI)—The Congregational Christian churches plan to demonstrate grass roots evangelism right here on the sidewalks of New York.

The denomination's board of home missions will launch a $30,000 pilot project June 1 in a racially-mixed Brooklyn neighborhood to foster racial integration and cope with the problems of teen-age gangs, housing and churches in the inner city.

This four-pronged "laboratory" project, originated by a Negro minister, may set a pattern for similar work in other cities that have become choked with poverty at their cores.

It will be operated through a church, in "half-way houses" in rented store fronts, in the streets where children play and in homes. The Congregationalists call it "precinct evangelism."

At the core of the activity will be the Nazarene Congregational Church, which is in the midst of an area jammed with 62,419 inhabitants.

"This church faces almost every problem that plagues inner-city churches throughout the country," said the Rev.

Dr. Truman B. Douglass, the board of missions' executive vice-president.

Rev. Joseph W. Merchant, another board official, said the program makes "the church's impact relevant to the real problems."

"The church thus becomes truly a civilizing influence, an instrument for appreciating the city as a civilization."

Anti-Litter Weapon

Portable Garbage Gobblers

A new weapon in the war against untidiness on B.C. roads has been launched by the department of recreation and conservation in conjunction with the B.C. and Yukon Junior Chambers of Commerce and the department of highways.

Recreation Minister Earle Westwood announced yesterday that distribution of junior garbage-gobbler litter bags will begin immediately through the parks and through game branches and through a province-wide undertaking by the Junior Chamber.

The new bag, a printed replica of the popular green and orange garbage gobblers erected at suitable points throughout the province last year, is designed to hang in the automobile.

It is attractively printed and on the reverse side there is a map of the province with pertinent information on camping and camping sites.

Bags will be available at campsites, motels, restaurants and service stations or through local Junior Chamber offices.

Power Board Names Five To New Post

New appointments for five district managers were announced here by the B.C. Power Commission.

J. D. Dobie, manager at Prince George, will go to the North Okanagan, with headquarters at Vernon. Succeeding Mr. Dobie at Prince George will be W. B. Gale, district manager for Columbia Valley at Invermere.

Moving to the Columbia Valley is R. J. Wark, now district manager at Smithers, and Mr. Wark will be succeeded by G. E. Fairbairn, district manager at Quesnel.

H. Vern Bigwood, assistant district manager at Vernon, will move to Quesnel. All appointments are effective between June 1 and July 1.

Tickets are still available from Miss Mary Adamson at EV 4-2862.

'Break' Used For Therapy

Canadian Mental Health Association's fight against mental illness will use the "coffee break" as its battleground in Victoria during National Mental Health Week April 26 to May 2.

During the week CMHA office upstairs at 738 Fort Street will serve five-cent cups of coffee to anyone who drops in for mental health advice or to offer suggestions.

Where's Dog? Metermen Ask

MINEOLA (WNS)—It's not "Where's the meter?" but "Where's the dog?" is the first question utility men ask wives in this region. So many have been chewed that most meter readers refuse to enter houses until they are assured the dog is locked up. Some kick the door instead of knocking when they arrive. Door chimes won't cause a dog to bark but a kick will, putting the meter men on guard.

Dawn Breaks, Shocks Block

NORRIS RISE, England (UPI)—When the sun rises on Norris Rise babies begin to cry, dogs growl, the washing on the line hums and the TV goes on the blink.

Housewives report the situation is "shocking."

The shocking conditions exist around a block of public housing located underneath high-tension power lines.

When the sun shines, the lines give off static electricity that builds up as the sunshine grows warmer.

"Living with a pylon is no fun at all," said Mrs. Evelyn Tape, who shares her backyard with a 100-foot-high steel tower.

"My four-year-old daughter Georgina is violently sick, my husband gets headaches and the washing gives me tiny shocks," she said.

FIDEL CASTRO

Huge Crowd Unaware Of Blast Try

NEW YORK (UPI)—Police arrested an unemployed U.S. Air Force veteran just as he was about to touch off a home-made bomb behind the platform on which Fidel Castro was speaking to a crowd of 30,000 in Central Park tonight.

The veteran, identified as John Gregory Feller, 23, who has worked as a riveter, told police he was going to set off the deadly bomb "just for kicks."

He denied that he intended to harm anyone, but bomb squad experts termed the bomb a lethal instrument and said it could cause extensive damage up to 300 feet—easily reaching the spot where the Cuban revolutionist was speaking.

CASTRO UNAWARE
Neither the bearded Castro nor his wildly cheering audience was aware of the incident at the time, but at police insistence Castro cancelled a scheduled appearance later last night at a beauty contest sponsored by a Spanish-language newspaper.

Feller was sighted acting in a suspicious manner about 200 feet behind the band shell which Castro was using as a speaking platform.

SEARCHED HOME
Police searching Feller's furnished room said they found another bomb and materials for still other infernal machines. Observers speculated that they may have nipped in the bud another "mad bomber," such as the one which plagued police and public places for years before he was apprehended.

Castro is scheduled to arrive in Montreal 11 a.m. EST Sunday for a one-day visit.

Radio 'Death Ray' Kills 10 Monkeys

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government scientists reported Friday that at least 10 monkeys have been killed in recent experiments by a crude "death ray" derived from certain ultra-high frequency radio waves.

But Dr. Pearce Bailey, who made the report, indicated a belief that it would be unlikely that such a thing could happen to a person listening to a radio or working a radar set.

However, he also said that while "we feel certain that radio and radar are not dangerous . . . we have had mysterious airplane accidents."

Bailey said the most important scientific finding so far from the experiment is this:

Of 10 out of 21 monkeys given sufficient exposure to kill them, pathological examination of their brains after death showed "very few abnormalities." And the 11 others all had a "quite complete recovery."

This shows that science now has "an instrument that can change the physiology of the brain without doing permanent damage."

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Los Angeles firm is developing an out-of-this-world sound. It could kill you, said William Thomas, president of James B. Lansing Sound Incorporated.

He explained: "The sound is so loud that you can't hear it because you would be dead before you heard it. It's perfectly capable of destroying

Boy Rescued In Car Fire

VANCOUVER (CP)—A three-year-old boy, Peter Butch, was rescued from a burning car outside Vancouver City Hall Friday by passerby Joseph Gray, who said it was just a "stroke of luck" he found the boy.

The boy was left inside the car when his father went into city hall on business. An unexplained fire broke out while Mr. Butch was inside.

CASTRO UNAWARE

$4,245,000 Project Includes City Hall

A $4,245,000 civic centre plan setting out facts and figures in detail for a "half-eggshell" auditorium and city hall on Cathedral Hill has been delivered to Mayor Scurrah, it was learned last night.

The study was requested last fall by the mayor when his revival of the auditorium plan awakened wide interest in Greater Victoria.

The mayor indicated at the time a definite proposal for an auditorium would be made in 1959, but added, "before we go further we must get something more certain on the costs."

It is understood the report recommends a 199-foot diameter aluminum-domed auditorium to look something like half an eggshell, capable of seating 3,000 and costing some $1,750,000.

A smaller, similar meeting hall with a 99-foot diameter dome and a seating capacity of 600 is also recommended at a cost of $220,000.

A multi-storied civic office building is believed recommended for construction adjacent to the auditorium at a cost of $1,800,000. For the present, office space would be rented since city hall wouldn't require all the space immediately.

Estimated cost of land acquisition and a parking area is expected to run to $400,000 and $75,000, respectively.

Cathedral Hill Best Site

The Cathedral Hill site, bounded by Douglas, Blanshard, Burdett and Broughton Streets, has long been recommended by planning experts as most suitable for a civic centre.

The same site has been chosen for construction of the new courthouse by the provincial government.

Principles of the "eggshell" type of construction have been known for some time, but it is only in recent years that such structures have been built. Existing buildings are usually described as attractive inside and out.

The civic building, it is understood, would have office space for departments, dealing day-to-day with the public, on the ground level. A council chamber would be located on the top floor.

Extra office space could be included for the eventuality of the school board being housed in the building and also to cover the possibility of amalgamation of Greater Victoria municipalities with additional offices being needed.

The plan was prepared by assistant city engineer Rodrick Clark, the architect who designed the new city firehall recently opened on Yates Street.

Concrete Plans, Costs

Mayor Scurrah asked Mr. Clark to make the study to have concrete plans and costs with which to win interest of the provincial government and Victoria municipalities.

Last fall the mayor proposed a small uniform tax levy (between $2 and $4 a year) to finance the auditorium without noticeable financial burden on taxpayers and without solicitation of public subscriptions.

The plan was later laid before the intermunicipal committee but representatives of other councils apparently wanted definite facts and figures before committing themselves. City representatives took the stand that all municipalities should share construction costs because an auditorium would be used by all Greater Victoria citizens.

Premier Bennett earlier this year said his government would put up one-third of the cost of the auditorium if the federal government would do the same and the community raised the remaining one-third.

Mayor Scurrah returned from Ottawa this week with the news that the federal government would not contribute.

Premier Bennett said the mayor should go back to Ottawa, ask again and refuse to take "no" for an answer.

Firemen, Railroad Accept Ottawa Bid

MONTREAL (CP)—The federal government has invited CNR President Donald Gordon and W. E. Gamble of the firemen's union to an Ottawa conference Monday in a bid to avert the firemen's threatened strike May 1. It was learned here Friday night.

Both Mr. Gordon and Mr. Gamble, it was understood, will go to Ottawa for the meeting with Labor Minister Starr.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Public Health Service plans to investigate the role of car exhaust in causing or contributing to heart disease, cancer, and other ailments. It was learned yesterday.

Bulletins

VERNON—A jury took 16 minutes to acquit Olin Lee Brage, 53, of murder in the death of Anita Budde, 23, last Aug. 3.

MUSKOGEE, India—Prime Minister Nehru challenged the Chinese to come and see for themselves that the Dalai Lama is a free man.

VANCOUVER—John Wainwright, 27, was convicted of murdering waiter Eddie Beresford last Jan. 13, and sentenced to die July 21.

FRANKFORT, Ky.—Gov. A. B. Chandler "with regret" ordered 2,000 National Guard troops into the eastern Kentucky coal fields to curb disorders in the 47-day-old coal strike.

MAYOR SCURRAH

Wholesale Mercy 'Wrong'

KAMLOOPS (CP)—Mr. Justice A. M. Manson Friday criticized "wholesale commutations of the death sentence" by the cabinet.

"I have no hesitation in saying that is wrong," he said.

"If the law is wrong, if capital punishment should no longer prevail, then Parliament should amend the statute . . . Parliament should not be overriden."

Mostly Informal

Royal Visit Outlined For City

Tentative plans for Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip to spend a largely-informal 48 hours in and around Victoria on July 16, 17 and 18 were announced yesterday.

During this time the Royal couple will receive an official welcome to B.C. on the steps of the legislative buildings, spend two nights in the new Government House, visit City Hall and be driven over the Malahat.

CHANGES POSSIBLE

Details were released by eight planners conducting a dry run over the long tour. They emphasized all planning could be changed before details are finally set.

Receiving lines, speeches and activities inside buildings closed to the general view are being discouraged on the B.C. tour.

VANCOUVER STOP

The Queen and Prince Philip will spend 12 hours in Vancouver on July 15, before boarding a R.C.N. destroyer for Victoria.

Official welcome on behalf of the province will be held on the steps of the legislative buildings where as many people as can jam the spacious lawns and driveway will be able to see the Royal couple.

FIRST GUESTS

They will be the first official guests in the newly-completed Government House on July 16 and 17.

Tour officials said the Royal couple "would almost certainly be taken over the Malahat drive."

There will be numerous eight-mile-an-hour slowdown areas along the Royal routes in the city.

TWO CARS READY

The Royal couple will ride in a convertible with the top down if the weather is good, but in case of bad weather the car will be a closed sedan.

Local police officials will work out timing of the procession after the routes have been fixed and approved by Buckingham Palace.

OFF TO YUKON

The Queen and Prince Philip will leave from Patricia Bay airport on the morning of July 18 for Whitehorse in the Yukon, with a stopover at Terrace.

Tour officials said final plans for Vancouver Island section of the tour should be approved and made public by May 15.

PULP MILL VISIT

Tentative plans for the Royal visit to other Island communities includes arrival at the CPR dock in Nanaimo around noon on July 16, with lunch and a tour of the Harma pulp mill, and return to Nanaimo.

The Royal couple will drive to Exhibition Park where they will stay for 25 minutes and be seen by thousands in Grandview Bowl.

Tour officials also visited Duncan.

CATTLE RANCH

The Queen and Prince Philip will start their tour in B.C. with a rest probably at a Kamloops cattle ranch. There will be no host, no press coverage and a minimum of staff.

LT. Gen. Howard D. Graham, retired chief of the general staff and commissioner in charge of the Royal tour, discussed advance plans with Lawrie Wallace, deputy provincial secretary, who heads the B.C. committee.

Tiger Mound Staff Proves No Mystery In American League

Detroit Tigers are confused, perhaps understandably so considering their 1-10 record in the American League.

Tigers claim all they need is a power hitter, but by the time they find one they may not have any pitchers left to use with him. While Rick Farrell has been pleading with the opposition to trade him a slugger, his pitchers have been giving up runs in bonus bundles.

Last night the Tigers lost, 10-1, to Kansas City Athletics, a team with a lineup that will never be confused with Murderer's Row. What scares Farrell is that it's beginning to look like a trend is indicated. In the past four games the Tigers' 15-man staff has given up 44 runs, and the Tiger batsmen have produced a whopping total of seven (7).

But while the Tigers, supposedly contenders, slog along in the cellar, the Cleveland Indians, supposedly nothing, fly merrily along in first place.

The Tribe needed luck to do it, but turned in the Indians' fourth straight win and their 10th in 11 games with a 6-4 decision over Chicago White Sox. Victory extended their lead to 3½ games over the idle New York Yankees.

Los Angeles Dodgers held on to second place, but it took 10 innings for a 3-2 victory over St. Louis Cardinals. Duke Snider's pinch-hit single brought home the winning run after Gene Green had sent the game into overtime with a homer in the ninth off Johnny Podres.

In other games, San Francisco Giants nipped Chicago Cubs, 4-3, in 11 innings, and Pittsburgh Pirates scored four runs in the ninth inning to beat Philadelphia, 4-5.

Petes Take Lead In Memorial Cup

WINNIPEG—Four consecutive second-period goals carried Peterborough Petes to a 5-4 win over Winnipeg Braves here Friday night in the opening game of the best-of-seven Memorial Cup final.

A crowd of 6,239 witnessed the hard-hitting, fast-skating game that saw Winnipeg grab a 1-0 first-period lead before wilting under Peterborough's steady barrage.

Second game of the series goes Sunday afternoon at Winnipeg and if the opener is any indication, it could be one of the roughest finals on record. Peterborough's Larry Babcock scored two of the second period goals for his club while Winnipeg's Laurie Langrell also scored twice.

Peterborough—Goal: Dejerdy; defence: Roberts, Plager, Hamilton.

Five New Candidates For Sid Thomas Prize

Rush of late entries has produced five new candidates for the Sid Thomas Trophy.

Letters received yesterday chose Ollie Goldsmith, Wilbur Webb, Susan Butt, Porky Andrews and Doug Bambrugh as the outstanding figure on Victoria's amateur sports scene during the past year. They join a list of candidates that takes in almost every phase of the local sports picture.

The trophy, in memory of the late Daily Colonist sports editor, will be awarded to the athlete or sports official chosen by a special committee headed by sports editor Jim Tang. Winner receives the trophy, replica, and an engraved watch, while the writer of the best nominating letter gets $25.

CLOSED THURSDAY

Contest closed last Thursday night, but letters bearing an earlier postmark will be accepted.

Letters received yesterday listed the following reasons for the writers' choices:

Goldsmith was nominated by Margaret Weir, 1645 Edgeway, for "giving tirelessly of his time, four or five nights a week, in coaching basketball teams for the First United Church Fellowship Group." One of Goldsmith's teams, in the bantam division, won a banham "division" provincial title this year.

Webb was the choice of Mrs. J. N. Forde, 704 Wilson. He was runner-up for the city tennis championship in 1957, won it this year, and placed second in the B.C. roll-offs while breaking the tournament record.

TENNIS PROSPECT

Susan Butt, the city's outstanding tennis prospect, was selected by Mrs. Herbert Brown, 176 Madock Ave. She is one of the top-ranking players in Canada.

Souchak Masters Las Vegas Par

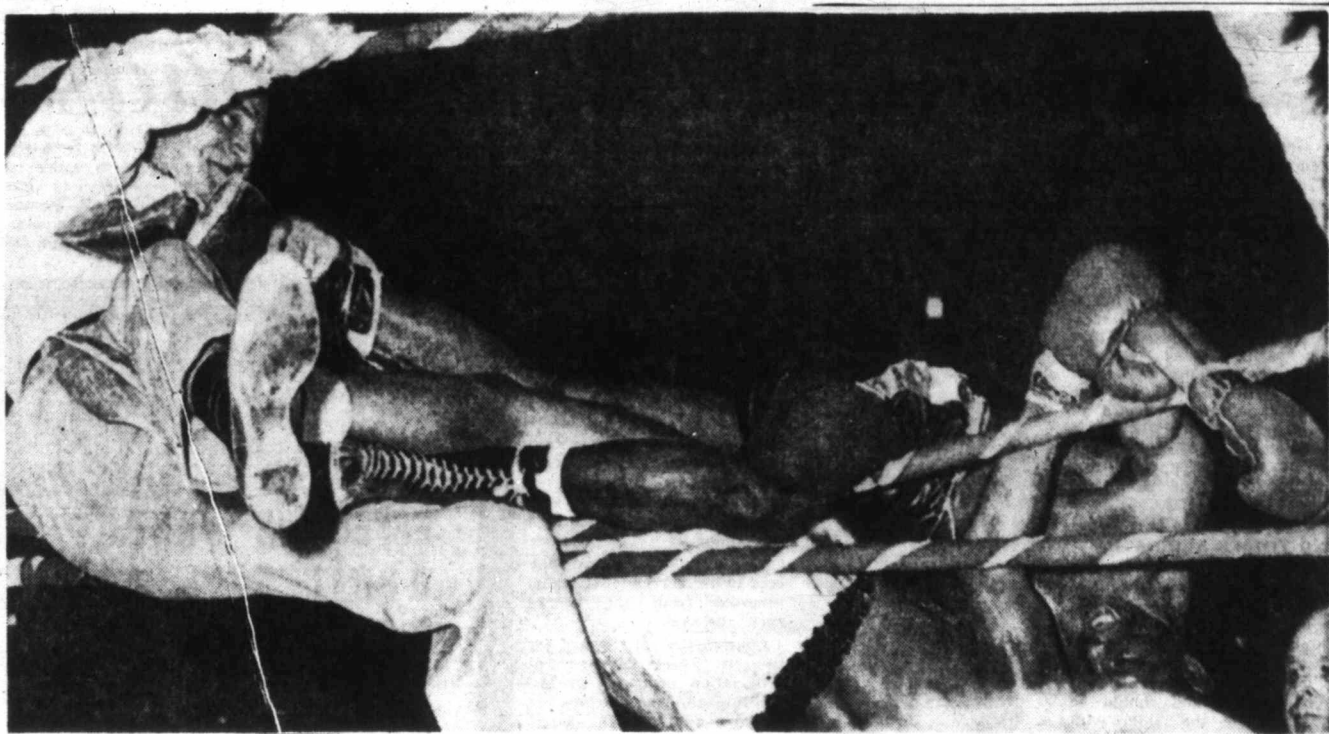

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Mike Souchak fired a two-under-par 70 Friday to stretch his lead to four strokes at the midway mark of the $46,620 Tournament of Champions.

One of only five professionals to master par on a blustery but warm afternoon, the Grosinger, N.Y., golfer toured the Duxbury Inn Country Club's 7,073-yard, par 36-36-72 course in 35-35-70 for a commanding 36-hole score of 136.

Mastered champ Art Wall Jr., whose 68 was the low for the day; Julius Boros with a 70; John McMullen 72; and Ernie Vossler 71.

Last year's winner, Stan Leonard of Vancouver, had a 73 and was tied at 144 with Paul Harney and Doug Sanders, who also shot 73s.

VIEWSPORT

By Red Smith

Louis Greenberg is a little old guy who has knocked around at this and that through a long and comparatively blameless life, growing in grace and wisdom over the years but not in stature. He is slightly taller than a 10-cent beer and busy as a creak of mash. These nights he operates as general factotum at Yonkers Raceway, doing what chores need to be done when he doesn't have something going for him in the Class 22 Pace.

One day last fall the telephone rang in the track publicity office.

"Is Irving Rudd there?"

"Irving Rudd?" the caller was startled by the vehemence of the reply. "Irving Rudd! No, Irving Rudd is in school, where else? You won't know what day it is maybe? Yom Kippur, you shnook, the biggest holy day in the year, and you should be looking to find Irving Rudd like he would be a guy or something to work in the office on Yom Kippur? You would be asking next for Lewis Burton maybe, or Marty Tannenbaum or—"

Knocked back on his heels, the caller needed a moment or so to catch his breath. "I—I'm sorry," he said. "Wh-who is this talking?"

"Louie Greenberg, who else?"

Original Zoot-Suiter

Chances are most regulars at Yonkers know Mr. Greenberg by sight, though not necessarily by name. He wears a cap and spectacles and is generally smoking a heater about ten inches long. He favors sports jackets, bow tie and slacks, not necessarily matched with loving care. ("Louie," a friend has said, "was wearing zoot suits before they were invented.")

In the autumn, five minutes after the finish of the last race in New York, Mr. Greenberg is in his car heading for the Jersey Turnpike. Two days later he can be discovered on the sidewalk in front of the Fifth Street Gym in Miami, resplendent in jacket of robin's-egg blue with chartreuse pants. Nobody knows for sure what he does all winter, but he's back in the North with the first shipment of horses.

In New York Mr. Greenberg lives in a hotel in the mid-70's, on one of those streets with alternate parking. That is, parking is permitted on the south side during certain hours and the north side at certain other hours.

Mr. Greenberg gets home from work about 3 a.m. or later and parks wherever he can find space on the street. At 8 a.m. he arises, dresses, goes down and moves his car across the street. He retires again until 10, when it is necessary to crawl out of the sack once more and move the heap. He is then in the clear until noon, when all parking becomes illegal in his block. Now he takes the car uptown to the 90's, finds another two-hour nap gets him sharp for his working day.

No matter how conscientious a citizen may be, the odds are that if he drives regularly he'll run afoul of the law sooner or later. Mr. Greenberg discovered this one night last summer when a cop flagged him down on the Maj. Deegan Expressway. On account of his size, not even his cap was visible from the prow car as he sat behind the wheel, and the cop wanted to investigate this radar-guided vehicle.

Expressway Jockey

Since then Mr. Greenberg has peached on a pair of briefcases while driving. He handles the machine skillfully. One evening another Yonkers employee hitched a ride to Manhattan with him after the last race. Weary after a long day, and confident that he was in capable hands, the passenger dozed off.

In the twilight zone between sleeping and waking, the passenger became conscious of a voice. "All right," it was saying, "take it easy, boy, just tuck back along the rail. All right, now we make our move. To the outside first—come on, boy, let's make it a big move—now we'll save ground on the turn."

All of a sudden the passenger was wide awake. Mr. Greenberg was rehearsing race strategy on the Maj. Deegan Expressway. The passenger remained awake.

Mr. Greenberg is respected as a student of racing form, and his advice is sought frequently by bettors. He is not ungenerous in this respect, but he has his own rules about it. A casual acquaintance sounded him out and was advised to bet a horse named No. 2.

The player did so. During the race he was aware of a hoarse, excited voice nearby, rooting frantically for No. 4. The man watched in dejection as No. 4 swept home in front, then looked around for the lucky rooster. He saw jubilant Mr. Greenberg holding a winning ticket aloft.

"Louie!" the man cried. "You had him, No. 4? You told me No. 2."

Mr. Greenberg fixed him with a glare of withering contempt.

"Shook!" he said. "Who are you. I should be giving you winners."

Veterans' Chief

Count G. K. Sammon, of Esquimalt, yesterday in Montreal was re-elected national president of the Department of the Veterans' Affairs Employees' Association.

Daylight Time

Switch Affects Ferries

Switch to daylight saving Sunday will affect travellers using mainland ferries out of Victoria, Sidney or Nanaimo. Both Canadian Pacific and Washington State ferries will continue to operate on Pacific standard time one hour behind when clocks are switched to daylight saving time.

Thus, the daily CP sailing from here to Vancouver will continue to leave at 3:15 p.m. by the steamship's own clocks which remain on standard time, while clocks elsewhere will show 4:15 Pacific daylight time.

Black Ball Ferries, Trans Canada Air Lines and Vancouver Island Coast Lines will make the changeover Sunday to daylight saving.

TCA will add two daily Victoria-Vancouver flights and one Victoria-Seattle flight at the time of the changeover. This brings to 15 scheduled round trips between Victoria and Vancouver, and five to Seattle.

Family Court Under Study

Establishment of a juvenile and family court in Greater Victoria has been under investigation by the attorney-general's department. "For some little while," Attorney-General Bonner said yesterday.

He said such a move would require municipal co-operation.

Parkers at 'Bay' Go Up in Future

The Hudson's Bay Company has called for tenders for the construction of a massive car parking building adjacent to the department store in Victoria.

The building is to be erected on the site of the present car park at the rear of the department store.

Plans for the three-storey building have been prepared by the Victoria architectural firm of Wade and Stockhill, on the instructions of the Rupert Land Company, the land-owning subsidiary of HBC.

An official of HBC said yesterday that details of the plan were not immediately available for publication, but that a model was being prepared at head office in Winnipeg.

The present parking site handles 300 cars and the new building will accommodate at least double that number.

OVERPASS It is proposed to link the garage building with the department store not only at the main floor level but by overpass to the third floor.

When the building is completed there will be accommodation for about 1,400 cars in the vicinity of the store.

RCMP are busy gathering special statistics on accidents and other incidents in the new 60-mile-an-hour zones, but results are not expected to be available until the middle of July.

A traffic spokesman said there is a three-month test being taken on the three speed zones established by Highway Minister P. A. Gagliardi on April 1.

Meanwhile the accident picture in British Columbia has started with a promising outlook with a decrease of 30 accidents for the first three months of 1959 over 1958.

5,714 from January to March 31, 1958, and 3,684 accidents for the same period this year.

Fatalities for that period are down 14 persons from last year with 36 fatalities up to March 31 this year against 50 last year.

Property damage for the three-month period has dropped $39,516, from $2,621,383 in 1958 to $2,581,847 this year.

The city already has a site at the far end of the Point Elliot bridge on the industrial reserve. If the Crowe-Gonson site is privately developed as a heliport we of course won't develop that one, but if it isn't, our site will be developed when it's needed," the mayor said.

"It wouldn't take long to develop it. In two or three months we could put in everything necessary."

'My Very Own'

Centenarian Got Her Hearing Aid

Prompt response has greeted a picture and story about 100-year-old Mrs. Susan Moore, Manor Private Hospital, and her need for an old-fashioned hearing aid.

Picture and story appeared in the Colonist Thursday, her birthday.

Color Slides To Be Shown

P. J. Crofts, assistant to the general manager of the B.C. Power Commission, will show color slides of nature subjects at the Victoria Natural History Society meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday in the Provincial Museum.

Friday, the mail brought an old-style aid and a letter from Mrs. Irene Jarrett, Chemainus.

After reading the story, said Mrs. Jarrett's letter, "I am very happy to send you along one my mother used for many years." She ended with a wish that Mrs. Moore herself might use the aid for years to come.

George Taylor, operator of the hospital at 338 Foul Bay, reported Mrs. Moore as being delighted not only because the hearing aid worked so well, but because "it is my very own."

Greetings for her 100th birthday were received by Mrs. Moore from Queen Elizabeth, from Prime Minister John Diefenbaker, Defence Minister George Pearkes, Premier W. A. C. Bennett, and others.

Victoria will be ready to develop a heliport near the centre of the city whenever it is needed, Mayor Percy Seourah said yesterday.

N. Chant urged the city earlier this week to start making preparations for a heliport on the industrial reserve or the former Crowe-Gonson mill property.

"The city already has a site at the far end of the Point Elliot bridge on the industrial reserve. If the Crowe-Gonson site is privately developed as a heliport we of course won't develop that one, but if it isn't, our site will be developed when it's needed," the mayor said.

"It wouldn't take long to develop it. In two or three months we could put in everything necessary."

Tulip Farms Open

Five Saanich tulip farms will be visited during the second annual tulip day tour today.

Death Sentence Commuted

Pleaders Thanked For Brother's Life

Chapman's Brother Grateful to Signers

Greater Victoria signers of a petition to save the life of Robert Chapman, 19, condemned to hang for murder, were thanked last night following commutation of his sentence to life imprisonment.

The condemned man's brother, Leslie Chapman, 29, of Victoria, who personally led an appeal for signers in the Greater Victoria area, phoned the Colonist from the family home at Rosedale, B.C., to express his gratitude.

The younger Chapman was under sentence to be hanged, Tuesday, for the Oct. 16 slaying of a third brother, John, on the family farm in the Fraser Valley.

His death sentence was dramatically lifted by the federal cabinet yesterday.

The older brother, Leslie, worked every night for three weeks recently to obtain signers to the mercy petition. He collected 900 signatures himself.

Churches to which he had sent petition sheets helped raise the total to 4,000 or more. The father of the three boys, Norman Chapman, also expressed deep appreciation last night for "all the people have done in pleading for Robert's life."

Death sentence still stood for Leo Mantha, 35-year-old tugboatman convicted in Victoria of the slaying last Sept. 6 of Able Seaman Aaron Jenkins, 23, at HMCS Naden. Date of his hanging was set for this Tuesday, also.

His lawyer, George Gregory, was reported in Ottawa, making a last ditch appeal on Mantha's behalf.

Building Starts Soon For 'Austerity' Fair

DUNCAN Work will probably start on an administration building for the Cowichan Class B Exhibition in June, said exhibition president Archie Stevenson yesterday.

Tenders have already been called and will be opened May 7 at 2 p.m. in the offices of the architect, he said.

A directors meeting set the date of the fair for Sept. 11 and 12.

Finance chairman T. D. Groves described the exhibition this year, a day shorter than normal, would be "an austerity" fair.

The executive is contemplating a $10,000 budget said Mr. Stevenson. He said it is lower than normal because the executive is trying to save every cent it possibly can.

Mr. Stevenson said the money is needed for construction of the administration building and stock barns on the 8.8 acres beside Pioneer Park.

Cancer Funds Give Care Without Cost

Lack of money shouldn't stop anyone seeking treatment for cancer, Miss Margaret Bradley, director of medical social services for Royal Jubilee Hospital, said last night.

Taking the extreme case, a patient without any means at all, Miss Bradley said everything from hospital to convalescence is provided without cost by funds from the annual Conquer Cancer drives.

Treatments, drugs, transportation to and from the Victoria Cancer Clinic, cancer dressings, visits by VON staff, and even a housekeeper are all available free of charge where they are needed, she said.

And if a patient lives up Island, transportation and accommodation will be paid for the period the person needs treatments.

Where a patient requires treatment by a Cobalt 60 unit, transportation to Vancouver and accommodation are also arranged. Some patients have been using free drugs for five years.

Cancer dressings for Victoria patients are provided by members of the Victoria Order of the Eastern Star.

Last year the order used almost 120 miles of gauze, more than half a ton of cellulose and half a ton of absorbent cotton in making cancer dressings.

The Conquer Cancer Campaign being held this month is aimed at four targets—purchase of a Cobalt 60 unit for the Victoria clinic, education to explain the seriousness of cancer, research in an attempt to cure it and to provide the free services where they are needed.

Donations should be sent to the Conquer Cancer Campaign headquarters, 816 Wharf Street, Victoria.

Liquor Prices Up Soon

Liquor prices will go up before the end of the month, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said yesterday, but he didn't say how soon or by how much.

There has been speculation that a 26-ounce bottle of whisky will be upped by about 25 cents a bottle. Recent federal tax increase on spirits is equivalent to about 17 cents on a 25-ounce bottle.

While business leaders complain that Canadian labor unions are dominated from the United States they allow U.S. corporations to take over the resources of the country," he told a Junior Chamber of Commerce audience here.

Profits derived by U.S. corporations from Canadian natural resources are much greater than the pennies which some trade unions send to U.S. headquarters, he said.

ALBERNI — Magistrate W. E. MacLeod dismissed a charge of careless driving when a Comox resident contended that an accident on March 6 was the result of his attempt to avoid a collision.

John Joseph Morrison pleaded not guilty to the charge which was laid after his car had left Highway 4 and crashed into a utility pole on the east slope of the mountain. An RCMP constable said the court that measurements showed Morrison's car had skidded 75 feet on the surface of the road and 99 feet along a gravel ditch before hitting the pole.

QUALICUM BEACH — At a recent meeting, village council granted permission to the Qualicum Beach Rotary Club to proceed with their beach front improvement and development plans, in an area lying east of the Memorial Esplanade.

The Rotary Club project will be part of a five-year, $35,000 plan recently formulated by the village council. Work will start today. The Rotary Club hopes for a ready response from volunteer workers to make a start on the project.

QUALICUM BEACH — Fifty-three members of the Upper Vancouver Island Medical Association attended the group's spring meeting at the Sunset Inn, yesterday.

Dr. H. A. Bowler, of Ladysmith, association president, was chairman, and guest speakers were Dr. Paul Jackson, chief surgeon at St. Paul's Hospital, Vancouver, and Dr. Maurice D. Young, of the department of pediatrics at University of British Columbia.

ALBERNI — Mrs. Jane Woods, 513 Swanson, died Thursday at the age of 84.

Born in Ontario, Mrs. Woods had lived on the lower mainland for many years, coming to Alberni in 1949. She was a widow.

She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Ted Eathly, with whom she made her home, and Mrs. Mary Whitaker, Loseland, Saswathewan, 10 grandchildren, and 19 great-grandchildren.

Services will be held at 8:30 a.m. at the family plot, Surrey Centre Cemetery.

DUNCAN — Cowichan Golf and Country Club members will play against 26 Royal Canadian Navy golfers from Esquimalt starting at 9:30 a.m. Sunday.

NANAIMO — CCF leader Robert Strachan says it is time businessmen "gave some leadership in questions that really matter."

Battle of Atlantic Day

Sea Cadets to Rally

Some 250 Royal Canadian Sea Cadets from all parts of Vancouver Island will take part in ceremonies at HMCS Naden on May 3 in memory of those who served and those who gave their lives at sea in the Second World War.

They will attend a special Battle of the Atlantic Sunday church parade on the upper playing field at Naden, to be followed by a march-past with the salute taken by Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, flag officer Pacific Coast.

On that day, church parades and services will be held in naval commands and establishments from coast to coast and operating at sea, commemorating the long and bitter battle for control of the North Atlantic. In the winning of this battle, Canadian ships and men played a major part.

Observances will also mark the opening of Navy Week sponsored by the Navy League of Canada, which administers the Royal Canadian Sea Cadet Corps.

Largest contingent attending the weekend Naden program for sea cadets will be 88 members of the Victoria "Rainbow" Corps. Other groups will come from Cowichan, Nanaimo, Port Alberni and Campbell River.

A spokesman for Pacific Command naval headquarters said the navy will announce its plans for observance of Battle of the Atlantic Sunday within a few days.

Woman Pulled from Twisted Wreckage

TRAPPED MAN DIES IN CAR

Car Slams Into Tree

A Victoria truck driver died trapped in the twisted wreckage of his car wrapped around a tree as police and civilians fought to free him from the vehicle at midnight last night.

Dead is Wallace I. McFadyen, 25, of 1010 Queens.

He was pronounced dead while still in the car at 12.10 a.m., half an hour after the car left West Saanich Road at the Durrance intersection and slammed into a tree 27 feet off the road.

A 19-year-old passenger, Faye Robinson, bleeding and hysterical, was trapped in the front passenger seat as rescuers struggled to get her free.

LONG TASK

It took police and other rescuers more than half an hour's labor with jacks, pipes and crowbars to get the dead man and his injured passenger out of the twisted car.

The four-door sedan was wrapped tightly around the 18-inch thick oak tree on the driver's side and was crushed so badly there "just wasn't any driver's seat left," rescuers said.

Police were called to the scene by nearby residents who heard the thundering crash and rushed out to investigate. They said the driver was still alive when they reached the scene.

Victoria police doctor E. L. McNiven was called to the scene by Saanich police, but the accident victim died while the doctor was on the way.

RUSHED TO HOSPITAL

The woman was rushed to Royal Jubilee Hospital in Saanich police ambulance after she was pulled from the shambles of the car. Hospital spokesmen said she was in fairly good condition with chest injuries, bruises and shock.

The car was twisted like a "trampled toy," witnesses said.

Police said it was "a miracle" the woman got out alive. They said she was conscious but hysterical throughout the long rescue operation.

Mostly Informal

Royal Visit Outlined For City

Tentative plans for Queen Elizabeth and Prince Philip to spend a largely-informal 48 hours in and around Victoria on July 16, 17 and 18 were announced yesterday.

During this time the Royal couple will receive an official welcome to B.C. on the steps of the legislative buildings, spend two nights in the new Government House, visit City Hall and be driven over the Malahat.

CHANGES POSSIBLE

Details were released by eight planners conducting a dry run over the long tour. They emphasized all planning could be changed before details are finally set.

Receiving lines, speeches and activities inside buildings closed to the general view are being discouraged on the B.C. tour.

VANCOUVER STOP

The Queen and Prince Philip will spend 12 hours in Vancouver on July 15, before boarding a RCN destroyer for Victoria.

Official welcome on behalf of the government of the province will be held on the steps of the legislative buildings where as many people as can jam the spacious lawns and driveway will be able to see the Royal couple.

FIRST GUESTS

They will be the first official guests in the newly-completed Government House on July 16 and 17.

Tour officials said the Royal couple "would almost certainly be taken over the Malahat drive."

There will be numerous eight-mile-an-hour slowdown areas along the Royal routes in the city.

TWO CARS READY

The Royal couple will ride in a convertible with the top down if the weather is good, but in case of bad weather the car will be a closed sedan.

Local police officials will work out timing of the procession after the routes have been fixed and approved by Buckingham Palace.

OFF TO YUKON

The Queen and Prince Philip will leave from Patricia Bay airport on the morning of July 18 for Whitehorse in the Yukon, with a stopover at Terrace.

Tour officials said final plans for Vancouver Island section of the tour should be approved and made public by May 15.

FULFILL MILE VISIT

Tentative plans for the Royal visit to other island communities includes arrival at the CPR dock in Nanaimo around noon on July 16, with lunch and a tour of the Har-mac pulp mill, and return to Nanaimo.

The Royal couple will drive to Exhibition Park where they will stay for 25 minutes and be seen by thousands in Grandview Bowl.

Tour officials also visited Duncan.

CATTLE RANCH

The Queen and Prince Philip will start their tour in B.C. with a rest—probably at a Kamloops cattle ranch. There will be no host, no press coverage and a minimum of staff.

Lt.-Gen. Howard D. Graham, retired chief of the general staff and commissioner in charge of the Royal tour, discussed advance plans with Lawrie Wallace, deputy provincial secretary, who heads the B.C. committee.

Castro 'Bomber' Foiled

Dawn Breaks, Shocks Block

NORRIS RISE, England (UPI)—When the sun rises on Norris Rise, babies begin to cry, dogs growl, the washing on the line hums and the TV goes on the blink.

Housewives report the situation is "shocking."

The shocking conditions exist around a block of public housing located underneath high-tension power lines.

When the sun shines, the lines give off static electricity that builds up as the sunshine grows warmer.

"Living with a pylon is no fun at all," said Mrs. Evelyn Tape, who shares her back yard with a 100-foot-high steel tower.

"My four-year-old daughter Georgina is violently sick, my husband gets headaches and the washing gives me tiny shocks," she said.

FIDEL CASTRO

Huge Crowd Unaware Of Blast Try

NEW YORK (UPI)—Police arrested an unemployed U.S. Air Force veteran just as he was about to touch off a homemade bomb behind the platform on which Fidel Castro was speaking to a crowd of 30,000 in Central Park last night.

The veteran, identified as John Gregory Feller, 23, who has worked as a riveter, told police he was going to set off the deadly bomb "just for kicks."

He denied that he intended to harm anyone, but bomb squad experts termed the bomb a lethal instrument and said it could cause extensive damage up to 300 feet—easily reaching the spot where the Cuban revolutionist was speaking.

CASTRO UNAWARE

Neither the bearded Castro nor his wildly cheering audience was aware of the incident at the time, but at police insistence Castro cancelled a scheduled appearance later last night at a beauty contest sponsored by a Spanish-language newspaper.

Feller was sighted acting in a suspicious manner about 200 feet behind the band shell which Castro was using as a speaking platform.

SEARCHED HOME

Police searching Feller's furnished room said they found another bomb and materials for still other internal machines. Observers speculated that they may have nipped in the bud another "mad bomber," such as the one which plagued police and public places for years before he was apprehended.

Castro is scheduled to arrive in Montreal 11 a.m. EST Sunday for a one-day visit.

Radio 'Death Ray' Kills 10 Monkeys

WASHINGTON (AP)—Government scientists reported Friday that at least 10 monkeys have been killed in recent experiments by a crude "death ray" derived from certain ultra-high frequency radio waves.

But Dr. Pearce Bailey, who made the report, indicated a belief that it would be unlikely that such a thing could happen to a person listening to a radio or working a radar set.

However, he also said that while "we feel certain that radio and radar are not dangerous . . . we have had mysterious airplane accidents."

Bailey said the most important scientific finding so far from the experiment is this:

Of 10 out of 21 monkeys given sufficient exposure to kill them, pathological examination of their brains after death showed "very few abnormalities." And the 11 others all had a "quite complete recovery."

This shows that science now has "an instrument that can change the physiology of the brain without doing permanent damage."

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A Los Angeles firm is developing an out-of-this-world sound. It could kill you, said William Thomas, president of James B. Lansing Sound Inc.

He explained: "The sound is so loud that you can't hear it because you would be dead before you heard it. It's perfectly capable of destroying

Boy Rescued In Car Fire

VANCOUVER (CP)—A three-year-old boy, Peter Butch, was rescued from a burning car outside Vancouver City Hall Friday by passerby Joseph Gray, who said it was just a "stroke of luck" he found the boy.

The boy was left inside the car when his father went into city hall on business. An unexplained fire broke out while Mr. Butch was inside.
